50th ANNIVERSARY

WALNUT HILLS HIGH SCHOOL, CINCINNATI

RISE TO

IE HIGHEST

When Walnut Hills was founded in 1875 "Sursum ad Summum" was chosen as a fitting motto, a thought which was to be an inspiration to the students who have filled its halls for years. In the fiftieth year of its existence this motto still stands as a summary of the purpose of our school. Rise to the highest—the highest in education, in citizenship, in democracy. This is its meaning, and this is the task which is placed before us. We take up the banner, recalling the words of J. Remson Bishop, the first principal of Walnut Hills High School: "Let us always remember as we climb upward that each step makes the steady nerve, the strong heart, the earnest purpose more imperative, that we may keep the lofty position which we have dared to win." And let us always keep before us the image of the blue and gold banner which bears the proud inscription, "Sursum ad Summum."

(Facing): The Grecian columns of the school form a classic background for the end of a day at Walnut Hills.

(Below): The fountain lends sublime grace to the courtyard.

With a building like ours in sight, our theme, Sursum ad Summum, wins out over Shakespeare's unwilling trudgers.

GRADATIM

Heaven is not reached at a single bound;
But we build the ladder by which we rise
From the lowly earth to the vaulted skies,
And we mount to its summit round by round.

Beside the "Wrestlers" in the courtyard two students wrestle with their studies.

Only in dreams is a ladder thrown
From the weary earth to the sapphire walls;
But the dreams depart, and the vision falls,
And the sleeper wakes on his pillow of stone.

—Josiah Gilbert Holland

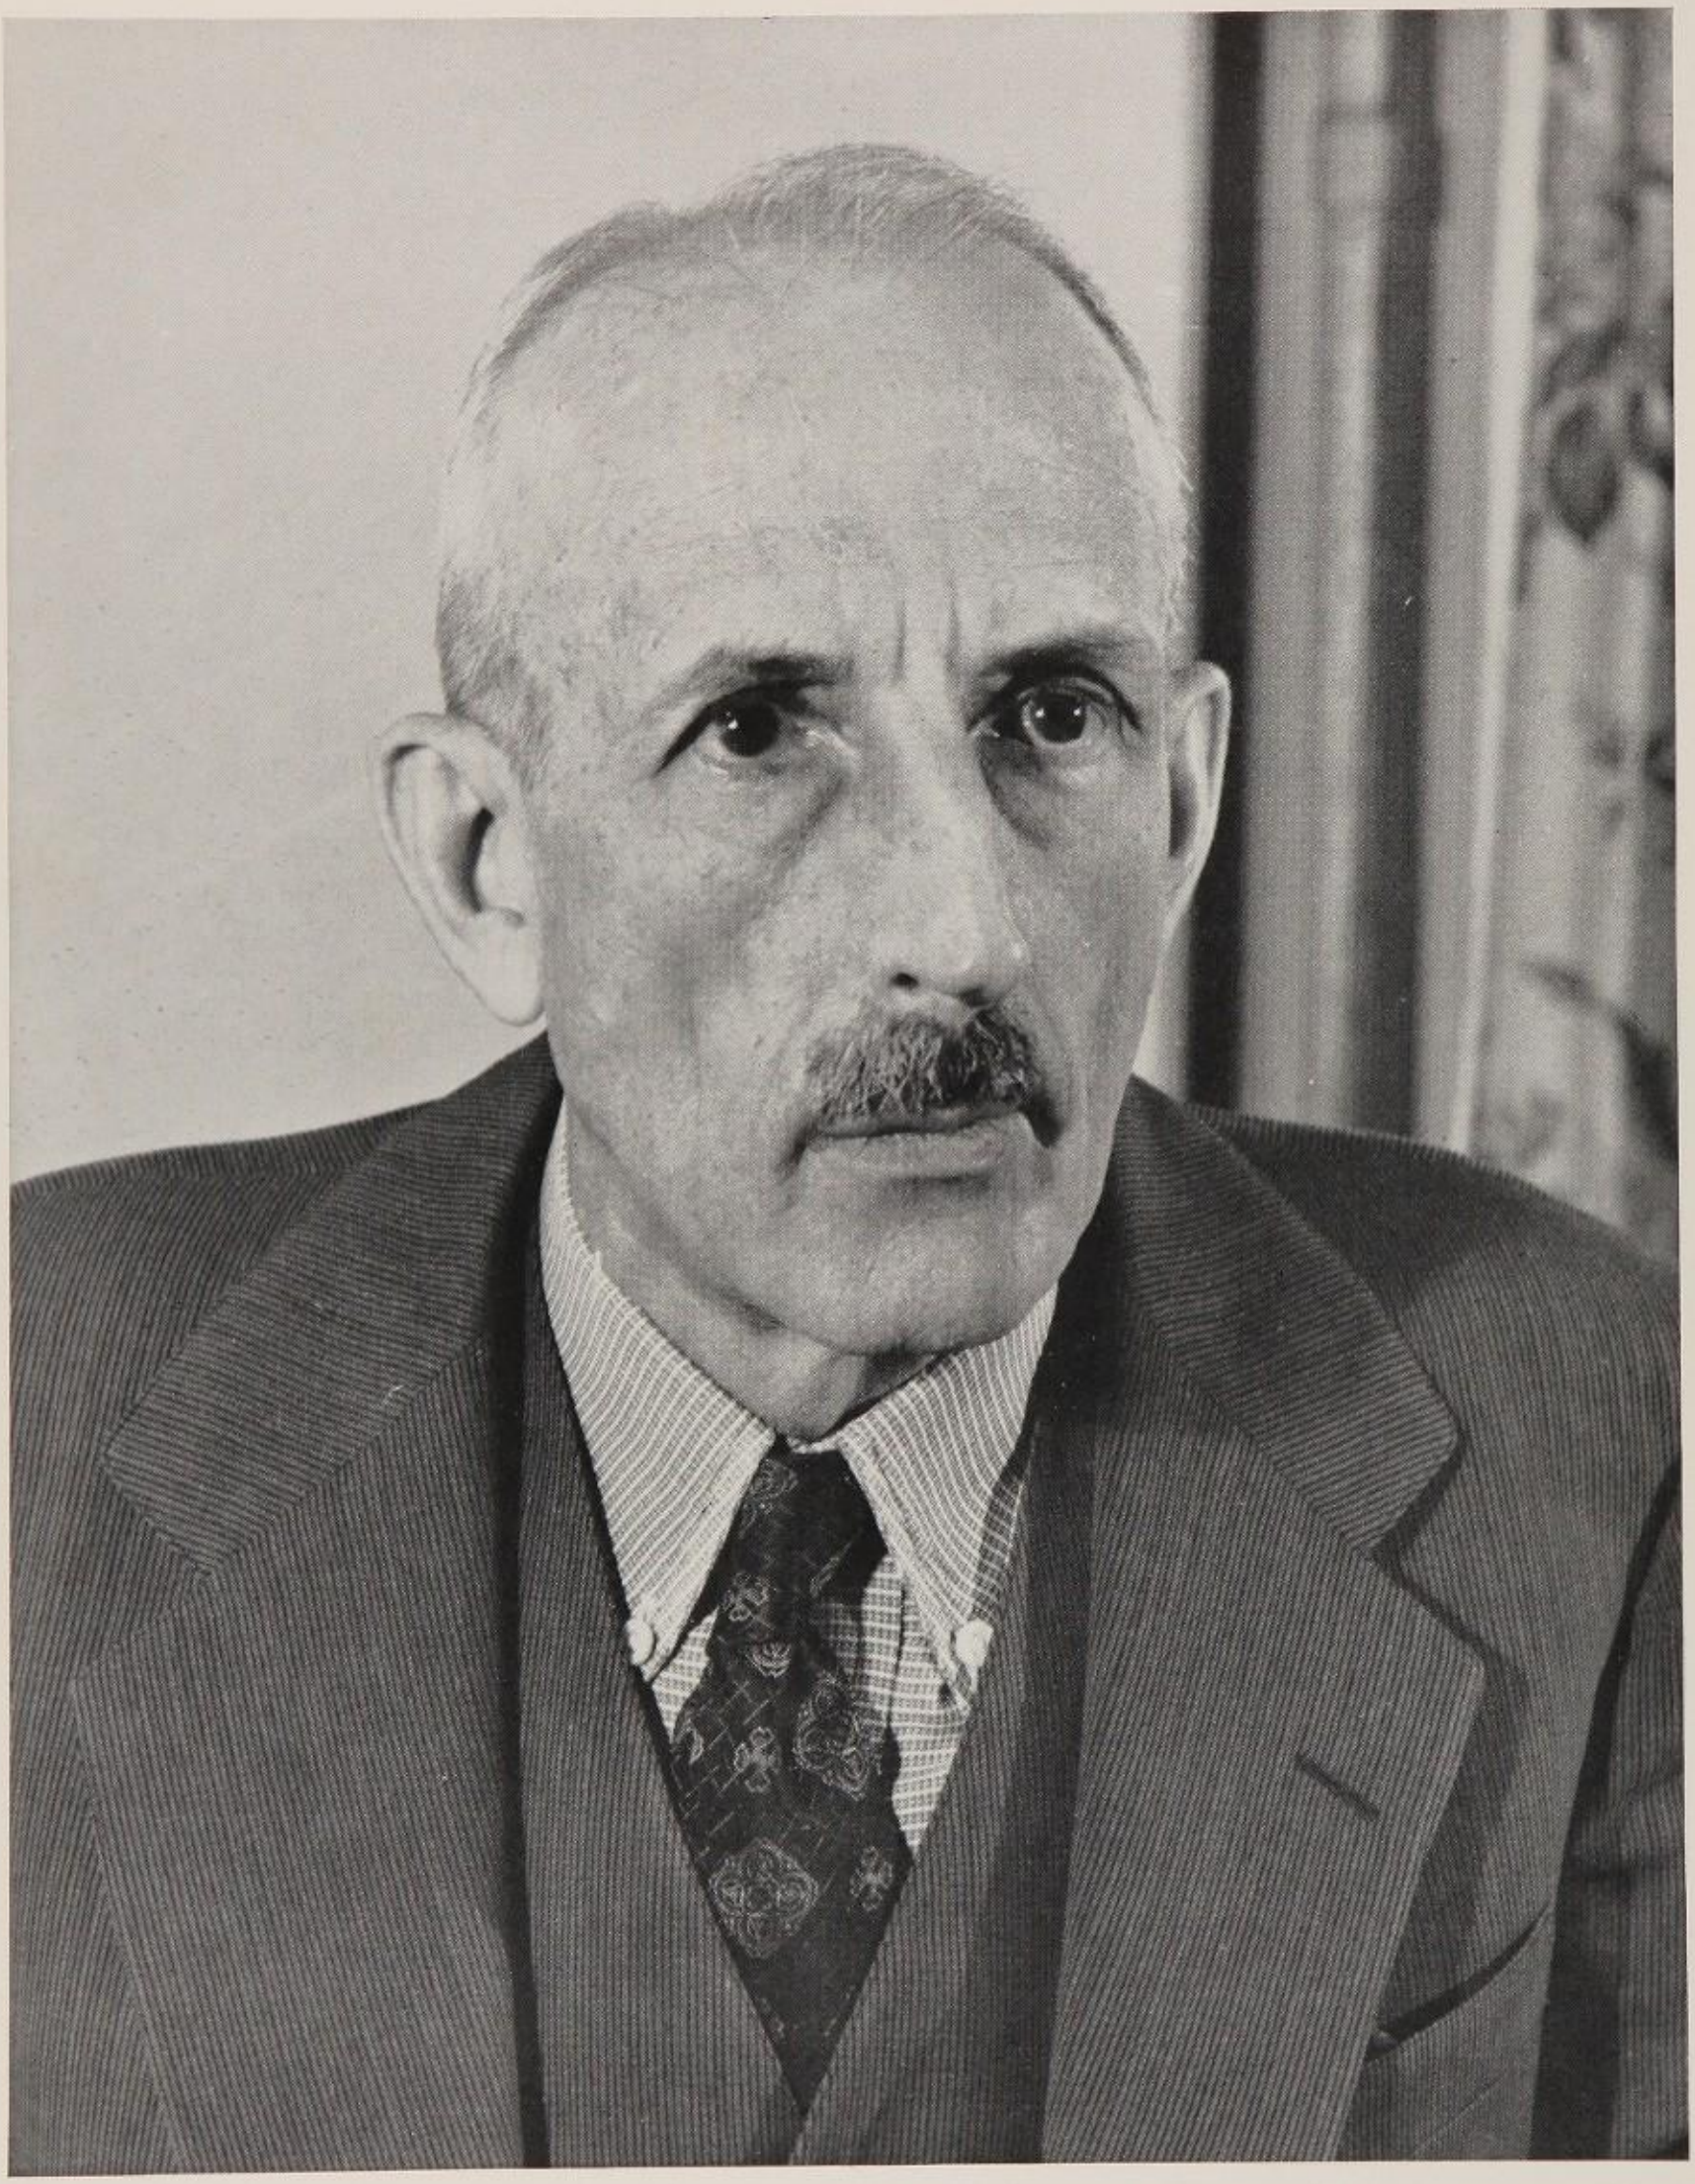
(Facing): The columns of our library, majestic in Corinthian splendor, are suggestive of our motto: Rise to the highest.

(Below): There is something reminiscent of the Alhambra in our sunny courtyard.



Mr. Stewart, our principal, poses in his office

When Elizabeth Akers published the poem beginning "Backward, turn backward, O Time, in your flight" --- it became very popular and was widely quoted and used as a recitation in the days when effective speech was known as Elocution. I believe that the reason for this popularity lay in the fact that the poet reached into the heart of every human being and made articulate a longing that has, at one time or another, been very real to every thinking person.

This longing, however universal, cannot be realized. You, pupils of Walnut Hills High School can have only your memories. No, that is not quite correct. You can have your Remembrancer and with its aid you can keep your memories alive and vivid.

I do hope that, in the years to come you may have the joy and satisfaction of living again your high school days as you leaf through this year-book and with the visible evidence of printed word and picture call back to mind the companions of your youth.

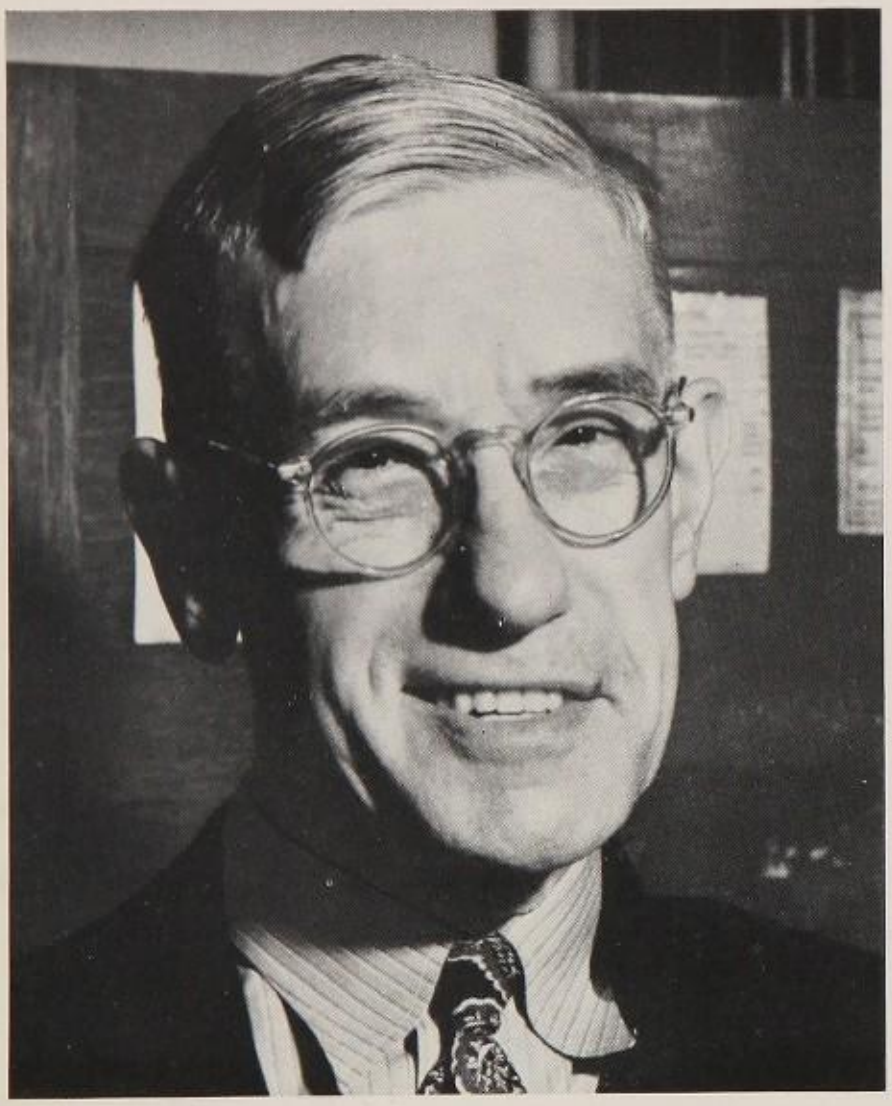
Our school celebrates its fiftieth anniversary this year. Many of you should have the rare experience of comparing this Remembrancer with the one published when the century mark is reached!

Leonard P. Stewart.

THE ADMINISTRATION

MR. STEWART

MR. STEWART is known to all of us as a pillar of the school, but little is known of his private life. Leonard P. Stewart is an avid sportsman. Typical of many men he finds his greatest pleasure in fishing, especially for brook trout. He has fished in widely separated areas of the United States, from Minnesota to Maine, from Maine to the Gulf Stream. Mr. Stewart is the true sportsman: he like to use a fly-rod and give the fish more than an even break.



DR. SENGER

As most of the pupils in the upper school know, Mr. Stewart has a special place in his heart for baseball. He played the game in high school and college, and for a while was a member of a semi-professional team. As a teacher he coached five grade-school teams to city championships, and in 1943 guided our own team.

Mr. Stewart was graduated from Ohio Wesleyan. He first taught in a township high school in Mansfield, Ohio; and, later, he taught for five years in Indiana. From 1910 till the present date he has been a member of the Cincinnati teaching staff. In 1934 he was given the position of principal at Walnut Hills.

Mr. Stewart has always taken a great interest in the graduating classes. Amazingly enough, he has found most graduating classes to be as much alike as two peas in a pod.

The philosophy of life held by our principal is stoically realistic: he thinks that in the long run a man receives what is his due. Through Mr. Stewart's guidance, Walnut Hills has improved its position of leadership among the Cincinnati high schools and has gained a reputation for its high standards of education in colleges, especially in those of the East.

DR. SENGER

DR. HARRY L. SENGER, our assistant principal, has demonstrated his unfailing devotion to Walnut Hills in the understanding and intelligent way in which he has mastered and simplified many of our school problems. His job is twofold: to manage the routine procedure of the school, and to deal with the conduct problems of the boys. Dr. Senger attempts the solution of discipline problems by stressing the importance of being able to get along with people—teachers and others.

MISS CLARKE

The Office Management

His training is a lesson valuable not only here in high school but later in life.

As for his extra-curricular activities, Dr. Senger's favorite pastime is reading, which he says is his besetting sin. His time is not all spent in reading, however; for he likes fishing and other sports. That he played a good game was proved by his winning the consolation event in the Tri-State Tennis Tournament during his first year here at Walnut Hills.

Around school Dr. Senger finds time to act as faculty adviser to the Student Court, the Gleam, and the traffic squad. Besides supervising these important school activities, Dr. Senger has built up the Hi-Y Club from one organization to three separate ones, the Senior, Junior, and Sophomore Hi-Y's. He has made himself not only a necessary but an integral part of our school, and Walnut Hills would not be the same without his cheery smile and his philosophical remarks.

MISS SHIGLEY

Shigley, monarch of the main office. Although many may think them monotonous, Miss Shigley enjoys her various and sundry tasks at Walnut Hills. Her jobs range from getting out records of graduates to writing reports and taking care of complaints of the parents. She also works all summer on the long and tedious task of making out programs for the seventeen hundred pupils, while constantly being interrupted by pupils who desire to change theirs at the last minute.

A graduate of Walnut Hills, herself, and a graduate of the University of Cincinnati, Miss Shigley has lived in Cincinnati all her life; but has traveled from New York to California and from New Orleans to Nova Scotia. In what spare time she has, Miss Shigley likes to work for the Red Cross, and also enjoys gardening.

MISS CLARKE

CHARMING and capable, always gracious and friendly to those who seek her guidance, Miss Olive Clarke, Dean of Girls, is loved and admired by all. Red Cross activities, Student Aid, ushers for school activities, Girls' League, and Big Sisters are a few of the student organizations which come under her inspiring leadership. An invaluable aid to seniors is her remarkable wealth of information about colleges and universities in all sections of the country. She seems to know instinctively which schools to suggest for each senior girl who asks help in planning her higher education. With equal skill she handles the role of disciplinarian or solves the problems of any of "her girls" who need sympathy and understanding. Thus Miss Clarke unobtrusively and competently carries on the many roles required of the Dean of Girls at Walnut Hills.

MISS RUSCHER

MISS SHIGLEY

WHEN AN effie, lost and bewildered, by chance wanders into Mr. Stewart's outer sanctum, he can always find aid in the person of Miss Marguerite

MISS RUSCHER

MISS ELLEN RUSCHER, the competent assistant in the main office, is a native Cincinnatian. A graduate of Withrow High School, she came to Walnut Hills after working a short time in a doctor's office. A sports enthusiast, Miss Ruscher enjoys swimming and tennis particularly. Although this is only her second year in Walnut Hills, Miss Ruscher has proved an able and important part of the office force.

MISS MEER

MISS MEER

THE CHARMING and attractive young lady that is found in Dr. Senger's office is none other than Miss Leonore Meer. Her hobby is at the moment the Navy, but we don't know whether she means this in a general or specific sense although we have our ideas. She also likes amusements of all kinds, swimming, and dancing. Miss Meer, the Doctor's "Girl Friday," attended Withrow. While performing her duties, be they stenographic or disciplinary, she is capable, interesting, and friendly.

FACULTY

FACULTY and CLASSES

"He Climbs Highest Who Helps Another Up."-George Matthew Adams

SURPRISINGLY enough, teachers are people—flesh-and-blood folks like those you have always known. Our teachers here at Walnut Hills are more than just people. They are friends, advisers, beacons on the dark road that leads to the future. Every graduate of our school can be sure when he leaves that there is some teacher who will have had a part in guiding him. Nor does the teacher forget the pupil. For all through the years his progress in the world will be observed with interest by some one whom he has not even seen in many years.

The standards at Walnut Hills are remarkably high. This is mainly because of our outstanding faculty, whose interests lie not only in academic work, but also in extra-curricular activity. Many pupils have found their future occupation because of the varied opportunities offered here after the day is officially over. Others have learned things that have been of eternal value, while still others have discovered things they "just liked to do." The educators at school have taught students not particular courses alone, but have also taught them how to organize their studying, something that is invaluable to the college student. Then, too, their courses are so interestingly taught that they stick after the credit is finally won. For all these things enumerated above we may thank our teachers.

When we have blindly groped for support in our days of adolescence, innumerable times have the next rungs on the ladder to adulthood been placed in our path by a teacher. A teacher's helping hand has brought all of us a little nearer to our goal in life.

Some teachers wield tremendous influence over their students, even over those who don't care greatly about the subject. There are things that may help to explain this. One is their enormous respect, not merely a liking, for their subject matter.

John Erskine, a great teacher and author of the early 20's reverenced and respected himself for being a teacher. The result of this all-important quality was a good moral relationship between himself and his work. It is not high-flown to say that this moral relationship is a vital aid in the production of good teaching. Erskine could teach his students to read because he had a large and lofty attitude toward what they were reading.

But if, at the same time, Erskine had only been able to inculcate this attitude, he would not have been the great teacher he was. He went farther: he challenged the students to understand what they were reading. He called upon them for a kind of mental exercise. Erskine made them work; and the more they understood, the more they liked the particular work they were reading.

At Walnut Hills we are indeed fortunate in having on our faculty the type of teachers who endeavor to follow the pattern of John Erskine.

Goethe, the great German writer and thinker, said, "A teacher who can rouse a feeling for a single good action, for one single good poem, accomplishes more than he who fills our memories with rows on rows of natural objects, classified with name and form."

And so we can rejoice that our teachers, taking pride in their subjects bestow upon us a deep understanding and love for the work to which they have devoted their lives.

The edelweiss flower is a small, furry, white shrub, whose native habitat is the Swiss Alps. The most abundant growth of this flower is found on rocky slopes, secluded crevices, and barren crags, where most flowers could not survive because of the adverse growing conditions. We have chosen the edelweiss as our theme flower because it has a special meaning for us as a symbol of encouragement and the embodiment of our high purposes. The name, "edelweiss," suggests noble purity. Because the flower is star-shaped, we can see in it a symbol of the heavenliness or loftiness of our life purpose. This is particularly analogous to our lives; for just as the edelweiss produces a fine, noble flower under adverse conditions, so we shall strive to attain the highest goals despite the many difficulties we face. Thus the edelweiss is an appropriate symbol of the goals and purposes to which we aspire.

ENGLISH

The great part that the United States has played and will play in the world has destined the English language to become increasingly important. In our classes, as well as learning to know and appreciate the great works of English and American authors, we master the intricacies of our language. Drill in composition and grammar will help us in our everyday lives, and the appreciation of literature that we have acquired will always be to us a source of beauty and happiness.

Mrs. Edith C. Harris, who studied at University of Cincinnati and four other universities, was Dean of Girls at Western Hills before coming to Walnut Hills. Mrs. Harris's primary interest is her only son; but on the side she finds time to travel, to listen to music, to read philosophy, and to play bridge. She is reputed to be an excellent cook. Best of all, Mrs. Harris, with her mellow, humane personality, radiates good will.

MRS. HARRIS

MISS HUTCHISON

Miss Hutchison's pupils find it a delight to be in her classes because of her beautiful flow of English.

Mr. Harold Inskeep, a veteran of twenty-five years at our fair school, collects etchings, and likes gardening. Around school he is famous for his annual announcement of the Shakespearian play, his management of the lunchroom and of the supply store. Nicknamed "Skippy," he has been mentioned in almost every senior will because of his popularity.

Mrs. Katherine Lappa, who has been in the English department at Walnut Hills for about ten years, was born in Indiana, and received her early education in the "Hoosier State," and at Colorado State Teachers' College. Mrs. Lappa enjoys reading good books and poetry, and is very fond of her two cats.

MR. INSKEEP

MRS. LAPPA

MISS McDEVITT

MISS O'HARA

Miss Eleanor McDevitt's great popularity won her the position of adviser of the class of '47, whose production, The Peanuts of '46, she so ably guided. Her prime interest is her dog, but reading also delights this teacher, as does hiking. Through this latter interest she has seen the local spots of interest, and has found how beautiful and historical Cincinnati is.

Miss Etta O'Hara, teacher of upper school English, is the guiding light of the Honor Roll of Graduates in the Service. She likes books and the radio and the usual things that teachers like. One of her chief interests is traveling; this leads to her hobby of trying to analyze various types of people she meets on her journeys; and the more types she meets, the better she likes people.

Miss Beulah F. Purington, head of the English department, hails from Colby College and New England. In her spare time she collects antiques, and does double acrostics. Miss Purington is a teacher whom her students will always remember, for her understanding of them enables her to give her pupils an appreciation of the subject that she teaches.

MISS PURINGTON

MISS ROSS

With the unusual hobby of collecting original pieces of milk-glass leading her varied list of favorite pastimes, Miss Vivian Ross has worked during the war as a Nurses' Aide and led several classes in knitting Red Cross Afghans. She is also interested in etchings, photography (color transparencies), cooking, style shows, theater, and reading.

MISS SCHWEIKERT

MISS SUTHERLAND

Books, music, and travel are the principal interests of Miss Mabel Schweikert, teacher of lower school English. A graduate of the University of Cincinnati, Miss Schweikert took her Master's Degree at Columbia University.

Before her arrival at Walnut Hills, Miss Anne Sutherland taught in Indiana. She still has a farm in that state, where she carries on her hobby of gardening. Miss Sutherland also has a collection of colored glass ornaments, pitchers, and fancy work.

Formerly the faculty adviser of the Chatterbox, Miss Sutherland now is the business manager of that publication. She has turned out several editors of college publications.

Miss Ross' senior English class gets a preview to college in the preparation of source themes.

LATIN

Latin is the basis for the classical standards held by Walnut Hills. In Latin we read the adventures of Hercules, Caesar, Cicero, Ovid, and other heroes of old, who strove to rise to the highest.

Mr. Arthur T. Condit, our lovable Latin teacher, has a special place in his heart for reading and walking. He says that he likes to read because he likes to find out what other people who know more than he does have to say. In twenty-two years at Walnut Hills he has taught math, seventh and eighth grade history, and ancient history. He now teaches Latin, and is treasurer of the school.

Mrs. Madge W. Galbreath, a teacher of Latin, is one of the most enthusiastic baseball fans around school. Her other hobby is one that will endear her to the majority of the pupils here: Mrs. Galbreath loves bridge.

Miss Alice Wilson's senior Latin class listens to Sally Cahill reading Dryden's translation of the Aeneid.

Widely diversified are the interests of Mrs. Laura Jane Renfrow, member of the Latin department here at school. They vary from sponsoring the Chess Club to having crowds of company, and from playing bridge to cooking delicacies for her family. Traveling in Canada and in our own country also affords enjoyment for her summer vacations. Hendricks College in Arkansas is her alma mater, and she has also studied at Columbia and at the University of Cincinnati. Mrs. Renfrow has a senior girls' homeroom which she likes very much. Her two sons, Omar and Louis, both served in the armed forces during the war.

MRS. RENFROW

Miss Alice E. Wilson, a graduate of the University of Cincinnati and a teacher of Latin at Walnut Hills for many years, has two hobbies: working jigsaw puzzles and reading mystery stories. As far as courses go, Miss Wilson enjoys Latin 10 IV because it allows her to teach Cornelius Nepos. A teacher here for many years, she finds that she likes her seventh grade and senior classes best. She likes the effies because they haven't yet learned not to study, and the seniors because they represent "the survival of the fittest."

MISS A. WILSON

MISS M. WILSON

Miss Minnie Wilson is a teacher of Latin at Walnut Hills and formerly taught Greek when it was a part of the curriculum. She enjoys bridge, sewing, and traveling, with emphasis on the latter. In pursuance of her favorite recreation, she has traveled from the North Cape to Mexico, and from Leningrad to Cincinnati. She is very talented in the art of making ties, many of which were sold in the supply store at school.

Reading Spanish newspapers adds special interest to Miss Steinau's language course.

The inspiring murals of Paul Ashbrook lend European atmosphere to Mrs. Ashbrook's German Class.

FRENCH

The French department, one of the finest in the country, owes its reputation at least partly to Mrs. Paul Ashbrook, at present the only teacher of French. Long recognized as the cultured tongue, French plays an important part in world literature.

SPANISH

Today Spanish is the "up-and-coming" language of the age, the binding link between the two Americas. The ability to read

Mrs. Marie Louise Creelman, a teacher of Spanish, studied at Ohio State and Chicago Universities. Mrs. Creelman likes to cook, make quilts, and collect antiques. Chosen by the class of '46 as its sponsor, she thoroughly enjoys her work as such.

A veritable Briareus, the hundred-handed mythological character, Mrs. Charlotte P. Gonnard is the faculty adviser for the Chatterbox and the Remembrancer. Unusually adept at languages, she has gained much from her extensive travel. She is the present holder of the National Masters' Bridge Championship of Cincinnati.

SCIENCE

The atomic bomb last summer startled the world into the realization that science had won the war. In the test tubes and under the microscope will lie the key to the world to come. From our high school laboratories may come the scientist who will strike out to help the world reach the highest in scientific development.

The jovial science teacher in 225 is Mr. James A. Caldwell, a native of Kentucky, who came to Walnut Hills twenty-five years ago. He spends his summers in a North Carolina boys' camp. As adviser of the Golf and Bowling Clubs, he has opportunity to engage in these sports, which are his hobbies.

Zoology is taught at Walnut Hills by Miss Etta L. Elberg. Embryology is Miss Elberg's special subject although she greatly enjoys teaching heredity. Making candy and gardening are two of her outside interests, besides traveling in the West.

An instructor of botany and physiology, Miss Christine Heis enjoys experimenting with her subjects and studying their relations to philosophy. She likes to travel, and has toured Mexico, Canada, and the United States. Much of her spare time is spent in social service work.

Dr. Ray Lambert, popular teacher of science, teaches physics and aeronautics. Sponsor of the Radio Club, he has turned out some efficient operators; and, as adviser of the Model Airplane Club, he has promoted the construction and operation of model airplanes. President of the Schoolmasters Club, Mr. Lambert is also principal of the West High Night School.

Members of Miss Elberg's zoology class study adaptation and heredity.

MR. LEEDS

MR. WELSH

A teacher whose most absorbing interest is the subject he teaches is Mr. J. Stanley Leeds, teacher of chemistry. A graduate of Hughes High, he attended Miami and Bucknell. His hobby is his four little girls, but he works with boys as sponsor of the Senior Hi-Y.

Mr. Thomas E. Welsh, teacher of chemistry, is admired by students and faculty as a fine teacher and all-round good fellow. His hobby is astronomy; but he likes football and other sports, too. He is in charge of the visual aids department, and adviser of the XEM.

MATHEMATICS

Mathematics, one of the leading subjects at Walnut Hills, is now more essential than ever for building the complex post-war industrial civilization. In a world of precision, it is well that we know as much as possible about math.

Miss Marie Becker eagerly looks forward to the time when she can again traverse the crossroads of the world. She is also interested in bridge and in athletics, somewhat poor substitutes for the open road, the mountains, and the sea.

Mr. D. B. Carpenter is Kentucky's contribution to the math department. His hobbies are dramatics and debate, but his real interest is his blue-grass ranch. Manager of the book room, he is also adviser of the Junior Hi-Y.

MISS BECKER

MR. CARPENTER

Mr. Harry Gassman is a member of the Walnut Hills math department. He specializes in instructing seventh, eighth, and ninth grade pupils. Mr. Gassman takes charge of the issuing of bus cards, an all-year task. This amiable character's hobbies are golf, fishing, and baseball.

Miss Ruth Hartlieb's interests consist of traveling, music, and bridge. This able teacher of mathematics has been at our school for twelve years, during which time she has taught English, geography, and history in the elementary grades, also. Her summers are spent amid the beautiful scenery of Michigan.

One of the most amiable teachers of Walnut Hills is Miss Mildred Keiffer. Her indefatigable good humor has led Miss Keiffer to well-deserved popularity. Here at school, she is adviser for Cum Laude. In spare moments she enjoys music, books, and travel.

MR. GASSMAN MISS HARTLIEB

MISS KEIFFER MISS KERSTING

Miss Emma Kersting has taught mathematics at Walnut Hills for many years. She attended Columbia University, the University of Cincinnati, and the University of Chicago. She has traveled through most of the United States, and quite a bit of Europe.

Miss Heis's botany students return from a field trip with specimens of plant life.

MISS STRATEMEYER

Mr. Howard L. Luedeke is a member of the math department at Walnut Hills. His hobbies include bowling and swimming, and he is an ardent basketball fan.

A teacher of German and mathematics is Miss Norma Stratemeyer. She has traveled over the entire United States, and she especially enjoys the mountains. Her hobbies are gardening and antiques.

HISTORY

Studying the governments and problems of the world before we were born, we study not a dead, lifeless story, but a vital, unending tale of man's progress. We who are to become the adults in a new world hope to reach the highest point of elevation of mankind by an understanding of history, government, and economics.

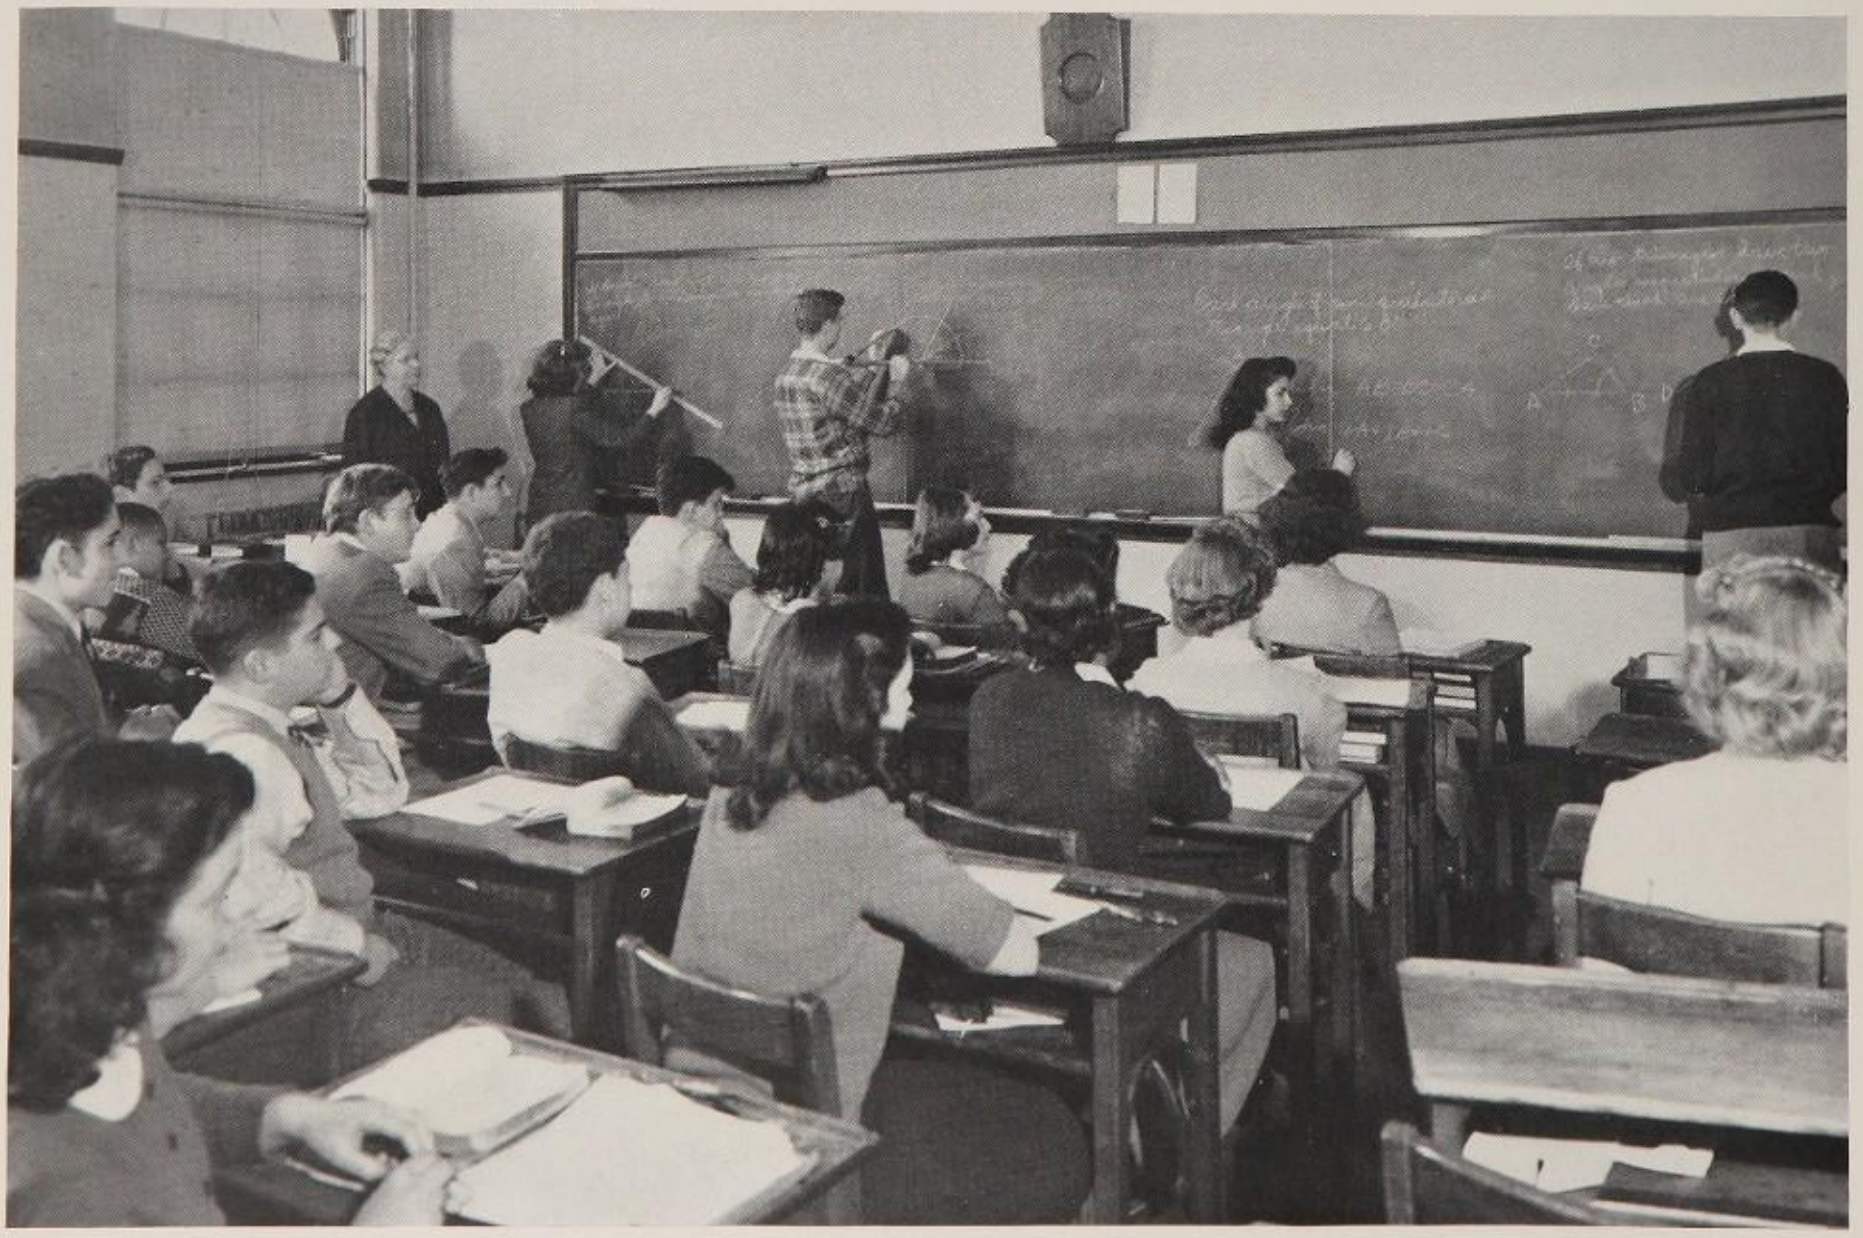
Miss Elda M. Baechle, teacher of history was Remembrancer adviser during the last three years, when it won the All-American Rating. Her interests include philosophy, astronomy, and archeology.

Miss Margaret Dunphy, with degrees from three universities, is well equipped to teach history. She has been around the world twice, and spent considerable time both in Europe and in the Orient, teaching Chinese and Filipinos.

MISS BAECHLE

MISS DUNPHY

Miss Kersting's plane geometry class struggles with the eternal triangles.



Miss Dunphy's modern history class studies China.

MR. FARNHAM

MISS LEVENSOHN

Mr. Ray Farnham is one of the best-liked and most versatile men in our school. Besides teaching his history classes, he is coach of our baseball team, and Assistant Football Coach. He plays golf and bridge in his spare time, and in addition coaches basketball at the University of Cincinnati.

Miss Dorothy Levensohn devotes her spare time to music, theater, reading, and hiking. She spends most of her extra-curricular energy in advising the Debate Club. Walnut Hills can well be proud of this alumna, who has returned to help improve her alma mater.

Miss Sanford, head of the history department at Walnut Hills, is the sponsor of two school organizations, the Student Council and the Current History Club. Her hobbies include travelling, reading, and gardening.

Miss Henrietta Schmeuszer, teacher of social studies, has as a hobby her farm, where she spends her week-ends. One of her principal interests is travelling, of which she has done much. Among her other interests we discover tennis, horse-back riding, knitting, and playing the piano and organ.

MISS SANFORD

MISS SCHMEUSZER

MISS SCHWENKER

Miss Margaret Schwenker, well-liked teacher of social studies at Walnut Hills, is the faculty adviser of the class of '48. A native of Cincinnati, Miss Schwenker received her early education here, after which she entered the University of Wisconsin on a research fellowship. Because of her great fondness for traveling, Miss Schwenker has made many trips through the national parks.

SPEECH

In this universe of growing dissension, in this world where peoples long oppressed are putting forth their claim of "life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness," the importance of the ability to speak well is immeasurable. Democracy means that each citizen must share in the great ideas of his civilization. Speech, debate, and dramatics aid in accomplishment of this ideal.

Mr. Wayne Gregory returned to the Walnut Hills faculty this year after three and a half years in the Navy; but since his return he has become known also to the younger pupils, especially through his position as adviser of the Freshman Class, and through his supervision of the Junior Dramatic Club and its play, Lady Precious Stream.

Miss Lotze, head of the speech department at Walnut Hills, has directed the Shakespearean plays and spring plays at school for quite a few years, all of which have been successful. Aside from her work in directing, Miss Lotze has several speech and dramatic classes and two special speech classes. We are deeply grateful to Miss Lotze for her fine co-operation and her untiring work.

MUSIC

Walnut Hills is rightfully proud of its excellent music department. Our A Cappella Choir would bring credit to any high school, as would our other groups, the Girls' Glee Club, the Junior Choir, the Orchestra, and our fast-growing band. The Octette and the Triple Trio are also gladly welcomed wherever they go.

Mr. Robert K. Hamilton, who attended the Dana Musical Institute, Kent State University, and the University of Michigan, and who is our energetic teacher of instrumental music, is responsible for the rapid improvement of our orchestra and band. He has worked hard, training many of the pupils himself, so that we can now be proud of these groups. We owe a debt of gratitude to him for his splendid work here at Walnut Hills.

Mrs. Nelle Custer Murphy has under her capable direction the A Cappella Choir, The Girls' Glee Club, the Boys' Octette, the Triple Trio, the Freshman Choir, and the Junior Chorus. She attended the University of Cincinnati and the Cincinnati Conservatory of Music. Besides her musical interests, Mrs. Murphy enjoys cooking, reading, and photography.

LIBRARY

Miss Helen Carson is always ready to help us in the library, a task which is a source of pleasure to her. Besides this she enjoys reading, driving, and being with people. Miss Carson is fond of animals and flowers.

Miss Helen Wilkinson is always ready to assist pupils in the selection of good reading material.

ART

The art department has a record which does credit to Walnut Hills. Our entries in the Scholastic Exhibition and the Symphony Contest have won top honors. Ceramics, oil paintings, water colors, and other mediums offer students an opportunity to express their utmost selves and provide inexhaustible enjoyment both now and later.

Miss Laura M. Bellville, art and mechanical drawing teacher, is well known in Cincinnati art circles for her annual exhibitions in the Women's Art Club. Her favorite pastime is vacationing in the Far West, where she enjoys painting pictures of the Indian life in that section.

Canadian-born Mrs. Ida B. Carmichael, talented Arts and Crafts teacher, is the sponsor of the Crafter's Club. She attended Emery University, took her master's degree at the University of Cincinnati, and doctor's degree at the University of Oregon. She has two sons in the service who are her chief interest; but she also has time for painting, sculpturing, and the study of consumer's education.

MR. DAUTERICH

Although he serves as art adviser for both the Gleam and the Remembrancer, Mr. Edward Dauterich finds time to design the stage settings and to plan the scenery for each year's Shakespearean play. He has held exhibitions in New York, Cleveland, Youngstown, and at Closson's Gallery in Cincinnati. Mr. Dauterich serves in the important capacity of adviser for the Big Brothers.

HOME ECONOMICS

Home economics, a course important to every girl, is a required study in the lower school. Fundamentals of cooking and sewing are included in this course which offers incentive to the future homemakers.

Miss Edna N. Moorman, home economics teacher at Walnut Hills, is a native Cincinnatian. She attended Michigan State and Pratt Institute. She loves all outdoor sports, her special hobby being motoring. She especially enjoys driving through the West, but her ambition is to fly.

MANUAL TRAINING

Manual training is as important to a boy as home economics is to a girl; and it is a required subject in the lower school. Many boys continue their study of mechanical drawing in the upper school and acquire technique valuable in many vocations.

Mr. Martin Peterson, who has been instructor in shop and mechanical drawing at Walnut Hills for seven years, is well known and liked by all who have been privileged to work under him. Mr. Peterson became interested in shop technique while employed in an industrial contracting firm. His special hobbies are photography and nature study.

PHYSICAL EDUCATION

"The way to a sound mind is a sound body." Good health is recognized here as one of the important requirements for happy living. In our gym and swimming classes and in our extracurricular sports we are building the foundations of good health, and at the same time we are learning what co-operation and team work mean.

It was a stroke of luck for our school when Coach Willard Bass came to Walnut Hills last year. Ever since his college days Mr. Bass has been working with boys in athletics, making that his hobby. From the fine records that Walnut Hills has made this year you can see that the boys always give their best for a coach of his caliber.

Mr. Allen Davis, known as "Whitey" because of his striking blonde hair, became a member of our faculty two years ago. Taking over the job of coaching a championship swimming team, he kept up the Eagle tradition and even bettered the standing of our squad. The principal interest in Whitey's life is promoting athletics at Walnut Hills, but on his own time he enjoys hunting, hiking, and fishing.

MISS GRADOLF

MISS HANAUER

Sports engage the interest of Miss Myranda Gradolf outside school as well as in her gym classes, bowling and horseback riding being her favorite sports. She loves traveling, and hopes to return soon to our own West and to Alaska.

The annual Dance Club program is presented under the direction of its sponsor, Miss Frances Hanauer, physical education teacher. She enjoys teaching tennis and badminton, but her preferred sport is horseback riding.

Girls as well as boys may take advantage of Mr. Peterson's mechanical drawing classes.

Mr. Davis drills his gym class in push-ups.

Miss Mary V. Sellers serves as adviser to the G.A.A. board, which guides the activities of all the girls' athletics. Her fondness for teaching swimming has led her to instruct interested swimmers in the standard Red Cross Junior and Senior Life-Saving courses. Miss Sellers enjoys playing hockey, tennis, and golf. Accumulating a library and attending the theater are other interests.

Mr. Carl Varrelmann ably coaches the volleyball, cross-country, gym, and track teams. In his spare time Mr. Varrelman likes to fish, to play baseball, and to bowl.

CLASSES

"I will study and prepare myself so that when my chance comes I shall be ready."--Abraham Lincoln

WE AT Walnut Hills are preparing for higher levels of education. As we advance from the ranks of the effies to those of the seniors, we are constantly broadening our outlook, conquering new fields. Our education is thorough and complete. Not only do we learn our lessons from our texts, but from our associations at school as well. In our clubs we learn comradeship, the ability to get along with one another. Through our Student Council and class officers, elected by the students, we obtain a view of the inner workings of democracy.

Constantly we strive for the advancement of knowledge. One class leaves, its work completed. A new class enters to take its place; and each carries with it the seeds of tolerance and democracy gathered from the fields of well-remembered school experiences.

Another of the desirable features of class association is scholastic competition. With the end of World War II, the emphasis on acceleration in learning will give way to extended concentration in educational fields. After the termination of the accelerated program, class groups will also be kept together over greater periods of time; and in that way a pupil will find the same competitive forces encouraging him every year.

The progression of a pupil from one grade level to another is a stirring challenge which he accepts eagerly because of the pride he feels in the increasing responsibility vested in him. Advance in grade level is also an advance in authority both in student government and in the selection of the pupil's individual course of study. The Student Council, which is our medium of self-government, is apportioned according to class representation, the seniors having the highest representation so far as the number of voting members is concerned.

Class projects, too, both stimulate good fellowship and give the pupils practical experience and responsibilities, both financial and social. Under the capable direction of the class advisers, every class has contributed in some way to the recreational and functional activities of the current school year.

A nation is only as great as the people in it. We of Walnut Hills are striving to the utmost of our ability to improve and strengthen our country by sending into it well-informed, able graduates, armed with the best weapon ever known: an education for a free, democratic nation.

We, the graduating class of 1946, are setting out into a world whose uncertain future depends upon the ability of our generation to govern wisely and well—profiting from the horrible lessons of past experience. Challenging us at every bridgehead on our road through life is the evolution of the revolutionary power of atomic energy, terrifying us lest one nation should seek to overcome another. But we do not face the future with fear in our hearts and lack of confidence in our abilities, but rather with firm knowledge of the thorough preparation which we have received for overcoming the obstacles of the future through further education and the use of sound, moral thinking. We look back upon the events of our high school education with fondness in our hearts and gratitude to the entire faculty and student body for making our high school careers a vital, happy part in our lives. As we face our college careers, we feel assured of excellent preparation in the fields of study which we shall pursue in colleges and universities all over America. Thus we leave Walnut Hills, confident in our abilities, hoping to serve humanity in the best way we can.

JUNIOR CLASS

WITH THE end of World War II, we of this year's junior class are in a different position from junior classes of the last three years. Although some of us will continue to take the accelerated program, most of our class will be able to take the regular four-year course because of relaxed government restrictions.

We have thoroughly enjoyed our junior year because of the increased number of privileges and activities to which upper classmen are entitled. The B.A. Prom, to which most of us have looked forward since the seventh grade, fulfilled all our expectations in providing lots of fun and a happy time for all. Our class has occupied a major position in the entire school schedule for this year in the drama, the art works, and the athletic achievement in which we have excelled. As we reach the end of the eleventh grade, we look forward to our senior year with the determination to make it the most profitable year in our entire course of high school preparation.

SOPHOMORE CLASS

WE OF the Sophomore Class have accomplished many things in a year packed full of interesting projects and activities. Many of our class have spent their first year in A Cappella Choir and other musical organizations. We supported many clubs heretofore not opened to us and have done good work in these. In our last year of membership in the Junior Dramatic Club, we have not only learned many things about drama and voice culture, but have also contributed to the entertainment of the entire student body. Members of our class have participated in many athletic events, with a good representation on both varsity and reserve teams. We look forward to our position as next year's junior classmen with ambition and the knowledge of our responsibilities. Some of us will be chosen for the task of guiding pupils of the seventh grade, to whom we can offer the benefits of our experiences in our early high school career.

FRESHMEN

AN ENTIRELY new vista of activities was presented to us as we returned to Walnut Hills last fall. Eagerly we joined the Junior Dramatic Club and tried out for positions on our reserve football and basketball teams. Our representatives in Student Council voted on the vital problems which affect the welfare of Walnut Hills. For the first time we elected the subjects which we felt would help us to prepare for our future training in college and in our careers. Next year we will continue our active participation in the school's extra-curricular program and try to take our place academically among the most outstanding classes which Walnut Hills has yet produced. We look forward to our advance to the sophomore class with pride and high aspiration, for we know that as sophomores we shall have a greater share in the privileges and responsibilities of our school. Having enjoyed the assistance of a class adviser for the first time, we are already making plans for the time when we shall be seniors, and have the major responsibilities that are their privilege and pleasure.

EIGHTH GRADE

Eighth grade girls learn an art of the home in their sewing classes.

EIGHTH GRADE

WE OF the eighth grade have this year become really a part of the life at Walnut Hills. We have entered into the swing of school life and have found how many activities and clubs are open to us, though we are only in our second year here. We have joined and worked heartily toward the success of these projects. Now we look forward with high hopes to our first year in high school when there will be even more for us to do. Through our Junior Student Council we have learned the operations which govern the school, and we anticipate a voice in the upper school Student Council. Our intramural athletics have given us greater opportunities for learning the games more thoroughly and an ambition to gain a place on the varsity or reserve teams. We feel that we are well qualified to take our place as freshmen in the studies and activities of the upper school.

Next year we shall have an opportunity to choose a class adviser and elect our own set of class officers and Student Council members. A road of untold opportunities will be opened to us, the class of '50.

SEVENTH GRADE

IN UNCERTAINTY and awe we entered these portals last fall, doubtful as to our future in the bewildering, swiftly-moving world of Walnut Hills; yet now after one brief year we have learned your ways and adjusted ourselves to the complex mechanism of the high school program. This has been accomplished by the work of our Big Sisters and Brothers, whose examples we have followed, and by a spirit we have inherited from the classes that have come before us. Intramural sports, G.A.A., and Midget Dramatics have opened the way for our future participation in the extracurricular activities of the school. We have elected representatives to Junior Student Council, who may some day represent us in the upper school Student Council. By wandering about the school in our spare moments we have found where many of the fabulous places, inner sanctums of the upper classmen, are; and we look forward to the day when we shall occupy their places.

Surely, the future of the class of '51 is destined to be a brilliant one.

ACTIVITIES

"The Best Things Are Accomplished In Spare Moments."--James Bryce

WALNUT HILLS, as a college preparatory school, fully realizes the value of extracurricular activities as a means of better preparing its students for their roles in the coming world.

Through the fine arts, speech, and music departments, priceless experience and excellent training are given Walnut Hills pupils, in addition to a rich cultural background. Athletic competition teaches the principles of co-operation and leadership, which will ever increasingly be needed in our postwar world. The school publications, the Chatterbox, the Gleam, and the Remembrancer, serve as a means of aiding our clear thinking, while giving us an opportunity to express original ideas. Science clubs open doors through which we may pass into unexplored fields of knowledge that stimulate our inquiring minds. Languages take on a new and fuller meaning for us when we witness them in practical application, as we converse in French, German, and Spanish at our meetings, and enjoy lectures given in these languages.

Walnut Hills has not failed its students in equipping them for their future. Extra-curricular activities will extend their influence over the life of every alumnus, as they reveal the way to beauty, culture, and leadership. The banner which waves above us, the colors which we carry proudly on the football field, symbolize the true meaning of our educational system: they are to us an inspiration to rise to the highest. Extra-curricular activities are a part of the training which may some day help us to live up to that motto.

One of the most important aspects of club membership is the development of fine leadership in the student body. The officers of our clubs, elected by their fellow students, get firsthand experience in managing student affairs and in learning to be at ease in the presence of large groups. The members of the club profit mutually from this arrangement; for they not only learn about the standards for the election of fine leadership, but also learn to subordinate themselves to others of their own age and rank.

Another fine attribute of club life and extra-curricular activity is the sharing of ideas with others who have a common interest in a certain type of activity. Thus one student, who has difficulty in a certain phase of a club interest, may be aided by another who may be in a position to give assistance. Where one member may suggest an original idea for a project, another pupil, sharing this interest, may offer suggestions to augment the original plan.

The extra-curricular activities at Walnut Hills offer the students an exceptionally fine opportunity to secure a liberal education embracing many varied fields, to profit from the social experience of learning to work with others, and to use spare time to good advantage.

Social perception is a rather vaguely defined quality with which some people are endowed more generously than others. Activities in school provide an opportunity for social contacts which are valuable in developing that quality. Learning to live with others is a vital part of education which must necessarily be slighted in the classroom but which can be gained in part from associations formed in club activities. Social perception simply means sensitivity to other people's reactions toward our ideas and conduct. If there is justification in the most widely accepted definition of education as the ability to adjust oneself to an ever-changing environment, then extracurricular activities are indeed important in their contribution to this educational aim.

Student Council Emulates

ONE OF the most highly esteemed groups in the school is the Student Council. This organization, composed of outstanding pupils from grades nine through twelve and under the capable leadership of Miss Sanford, makes and enforces the school rules. Among its many projects for this year were the weekly magazine collections for the Red Cross, the banner for the fiftieth anniversary celebration of Walnut Hills, and the promotion of better relations among the students. The Council has also been active in instigating badly-needed repairs in both the teachers' and pupils' parking lots. Working in close co-operation with the extra-curricular activities and student organizations, the Council hopes to complete a handbook including a brief explanation of the customs, rules, and organizations of the school to be given to all new pupils entering Walnut Hills. The regular Student Council meets every other Monday; the Executive Committee, composed of chosen members from the regular Council plus ex-officio members and committee chairmen, meets on the alternate Monday. By meeting every week, the Council is able to keep up to the minute on current school problems. In addition, the Council offers valuable experience and training in leadership for our future citizens. Perhaps more than any other organization, the Council guides the student activities of Walnut Hills High School.

The lower classmen at Walnut Hills also receive the privilege of self-government. The Junior Student Council, composed of members chosen from the seventh and eighth grades and under the leadership of Miss Baechle and Bill Gregg, vice-president of the Senior Student Council, meets on the same days as the Executive Committee of the regular Council. Among other projects, the Junior Student Council has sponsored a clean-up campaign and a drive for new and better school buses. Currently the Junior Student Council has adopted a plan for awarding School Citizen certificates to the pupils of the seventh and eighth grades who receive the highest number of points for: (1) Scholarship; (2) Co-operation; (3) Participation. This is to encourage junior high pupils to take a more active part in the life of Walnut Hills High School. The Junior Council, then, affords valuable training for future members of the upper school Student Council.

Girls' League Includes All The Girls Of The School

OUTSTANDING boys and girls in the senior class act with Miss Clarke and Dr. Senger in directing affairs of the students. Under Miss Clarke are the five girls of the Senior Council, each of whom has charge of ushers at plays, Red Cross, Student Aid, Big Sisters, or Girl's League. The boys of the Student Court act in a disciplinary capacity, and also carry out executive functions in connection with the boys' activities. The Girls' Senior Council meets weekly for lunch with Miss Clarke to combine pleasure with the business of the girls. The Student Court meets to try cases of discipline, and acts as the judicial body of the Student Council.

Upon entering Walnut Hills, every girl automatically becomes a member of the Girls' League. The purpose of the League is to provide a democratic outlet for the talents of all girls of the school through worth-while service projects and monthly programs presented by the six different grades. This provides a greater sense of unity among the girls, and develops good followers as well as leaders. This year many new activities, in addition to those carried on during the war, have been undertaken. Christmas cards and favors for veterans' hospitals, as well as bonnets, bibs, and baby dresses have been made.

Timely Problems Challenge Current

THE CURRENT HISTORY CLUB functioned this year under a plan of having two meetings conducted by members and every third meeting by an outside speaker. The meetings in which students took the greater part were conducted in "Town Meeting" form. Four members of the club gave a short talk, each presenting his views on the subject under discussion. This was followed by a question period, during which time members of the audience had a chance to question the speakers on their views. Some of our most interesting meetings included discussions of "What Should Be Done with the Atomic Bomb" and "Should Labor's Demand for Higher Wages Be Met?' Another enlightening discussion was held on "Is the United States' Foreign Policy Conducive to Lasting Peace?" At this meeting each of the four speakers took a different phase of our foreign policy, and expounded his ideas upon that phase. A lively debate was held on "How Much Has Been Accomplished by the Pearl Harbor Investigating Committee?" The last discussion period of the year was held on the topic: "Do the Present Proceedings of the United Nations Organization Show Promise of Insuring Peace?" Every topic discussed under this plan was on a lively, important, up-to-date subject.

At our other meetings we were fortunate in having as outside speakers men who are authorities on their subjects. Our first speaker of the year was Mr. Charles P. Taft. Mr. Taft presented a very enlightening speech on the councilmanic elections, about to be held at that time. He was followed by Mr. Rollin H. Everett, who addressed the club on the topic, "Increased Labor Strife and the Reconversion Program." The speaker presented a very clear-cut view of labor's side of the argument. Lt. Col. Robert Gorman later spoke to the club on "Developments in Italy." Colonel Gorman had been a member of the Allied Military Government in Italy, Sicily, and Africa. Our next speaker was one of the most stimulating of the entire year: Mr. Arnold Walker spoke to us on "Race Relations." The speech was followed by a question period which was equally stimulating. Colonel William A. Cahill succeeded Mr. Walker with a very timely discussion on "The Future of China." Colonel Cahill had spent more than two years in China with the U. S. Army.

The Current History Club had a very successful year. It afforded its members the opportunity to learn about the vital problems which they will have to face as they come into contact with the world outside school. The most important achievement of the club was its causing its members to use their minds in thinking logically. Being able to think logically is, in reality, the most important quality of good citizens. For this reason the club is proud of its role in helping to mold future citizens for our democracy.

Radio Guild And Debate Club Develop Speech Arts

Mathis.

One of the rather recent groups to be formed at school is the Radio Guild, which is under the auspices of Miss Lotze. Three times weekly the Guild presents the news of the day over the broadcasting system to the entire school. The scripts are prepared by writers selected from among those who prepared sample scripts at the try-out. Announcers are chosen by try-outs over the microphone in the auditorium.

The Debate Club, sponsored by Miss Levensohn, is one of the most popular clubs at Walnut Hills. Every meeting attracts a large audience; for the topics discussed are not only timely, but subjects in which the students are vitally interested. The students who participate are receiving training that will be valuable to them later in life.

The Big Sisters organization was formed as a function of the Girls' League several years ago, and since that time has been under the guidance of Miss Olive M. Clarke, dean of girls. The main purpose of this organization is to take away some of the strangeness that the new girl feels when entering a new school. The Big Sisters consist of girls selected for their leadership, scholarship, and personality.

Fortune Teller Is Feature Of Big Sister Party.

The Big Brothers is an organization of junior and senior boys who act as advisers and helpers to the seventh-grade boys. The Big Brother meets a group of about five "effies," and from then on the youngsters are his little brothers. The last year has been the fourth since the Big Brothers was formed under the guidance of Mr. Dauterich. This group has been of great value in locating new boys and getting them started on the right foot in Walnut Hills.

Girl Reserves Has A Real Message

THE GIRL RESERVES CLUB of 150 upper-school girls who are junior members of the Y.W.C.A., has as its slogan, "Face life squarely, giving and finding the best." Led by the president, Julie Postler, and the sponsor, Miss Steinau, this year's organization began learning how to "face life squarely" by developing an understanding of the various religions of the world. The Girl Reserves "gave their best" by offering their services in the Red Cross work and in visits to various hopsitals and orphan homes. A circle signifying the world in which she lives, surrounded by the triangle symbolizing physical, mental, and spiritual growth, represents the true spirit of the Girl Reserves.

The Hi-Y Does Much Toward The Building Of Character

THIS YEAR the Senior, Junior, and Sophomore Hi-Y's under the guidance of Dr. Senger, Mr. Carpenter, and Mr. Leeds, respectively, have done much more than is usually accomplished. The Senior group had its annual banquet in honor of the football team. This affair was a great success due to the hard work that went into its making. The Junior Hi-Y took over a job that was performed by the seniors till this year, namely, the tutoring of boys in the lower school who are having difficulty in their subjects. The juniors gave up many study halls and put forth great effort for their younger schoolmates. Besides this latter activity, the Junior Hi-Y sold the hot dogs at the football and basketball games. The Sophomore Hi-Y, seeing that that very worthwhile organization, the Traffic Squad, needed more members, found some boys who were willing to change their schedule and work in the mornings and afternoons for the good of the pupils. In honor of the basketball team, the three groups combined to put on an assembly at which Mayor James Garfield Stewart and our own Coach Willard Bass spoke.

The Hi-Y's meet every other Thursday night in the Williams Branch of the Y.M.C.A. Besides their regular business meetings various speakers are often engaged to speak to the boys on many interesting and informative topics.

The Chatterbox Holds To Its High

The complex problem of putting out the Chatterbox was divided between two staffs under the editors, Sylvia Shapiro, Mike Mathis, and Joe Graves, the faculty adviser, Mrs. Gonnard; and the faculty business adviser, Miss Sutherland. The insight and ability of the new adviser, Mrs. Gonnard, have proved a great asset to the staff. One of her first acts was to cast off a twenty-five-year tradition in appointing for the first time in the paper's history a girl, Sylvia Shapiro, as co-editor.

Main Events Of The Year

THE WAR over, the Remembrancer staff thought that most of the difficulties encountered by previous staffs would be over. However, there still was a paper shortage; engravings and photographs became more expensive; and book covers were hard ot obtain. Nevertheless, in spite of all these troubles, the staff worked diligently in order to have the book ready by June.

This year the Remembrancer has departed from the usual pictorial style of annual, and is instead using a more literary or book form in combination with the pictorial. This new style offers more ways to add a greater variety to the book, because each section can be developed in a different manner. Our theme has been dominant throughout the whole book; and it has been made more vivid and telling by the unique and original drawings created by the art staff.

The work of composing the Remembrancer was apportioned among seven departments: the literary staff, headed by Terry Harris; the art staff, under Roger Neblett; the make-up staff, under the guidance of Jean Zeiger; the advertising department, in charge of Frank Lazarus; the business department, under Bill Gregg; the photography staff, upon which the Remembrancer depended for much of the illustrative material, with Bob Yamin at its head and assisted by Sally Cahill; and the typing staff, headed by Marilyn White.

Behind the students' efforts lay the guidance and work of Mrs. Charlotte Pichel Gonnard, general adviser, and Mr. Edward Dauterich, art adviser, who spent many long and tedious hours trying to reach the highest mark of perfection.

SINCE 1895 the Gleam has served Walnut Hills: first as the annual, and later as the literary magazine. Now three issues are published yearly. Poetry, short stories, and essays written by the students are submitted to the publication. After a meeting of the literary staff and co-editors, the selections for the next Gleam are sent to the art department. Here the art staff under the able direction of Mr. Dauterich plans the illustrations for the issue. After a further conference of the co-editors and Dr. Senger, the adviser of the Gleam, the magazine is published and distributed to the student body.

The Walnut Hills chapter of Quill and Scroll, the national honorary literary society, is composed of students who have distinguished themselves by their work on the Chatterbox, the Gleam, or the Remembrancer. Juniors and seniors active in work on the publications here at school were elected at mid-year and in an impressive ceremony initiated into the William Henry Venable chapter of the society. As members they are qualified to contribute to the Quill and Scroll magazine which they receive monthly and to participate in contests sponsored by it.

Chemistry Advances In Timeliness

ONE OF the most interesting clubs on the extracurricular activities list is the chemistry or X.E.M. Club. Under the leadership of Mr. Welsh and the officers, Dick Phillips, Terry Harris, Mary Louise Murphy, and Philip Carson, the club this year grew to the amazing size of over a hundred members.

The Chemistry Club is conducted on the point system, each member earning the points necessary to remain in the club by conducting experiments, serving as lab assistants or working in some other way in the chemistry department. This means that every member takes an active part in the club's activities.

Programs are in the nature of lectures or demonstrations by the members, each member participating in a program on the subject which interests him most. This year, as in former years, the composition of cosmetics, the chemistry of explosives, and so forth, have made up the programs. Who knows but that the information gained through this club may someday lead the members on to important discoveries?

The A Cappella Choir Expresses

Membership in the A Cappella Choir represents the highest aspiration of any pupil who is interested in the choral music program at Walnut Hills. Students, faculty members, music lovers from far and wide have been thrilled by the glorious musical renditions and the striking appearance of this group. The beautiful blue and gold robes which are fashioned after the design of the cowl and gown of a monk are distinctive and unique. There are no other robes like them anywhere, for they were designed and made exclusively for our A Cappella Choir. It has been said that vocal music without accompaniment is vocal music at its best; in any performance of the A Cappella Choir the quality of the music produced depends upon the individual attention of each pupil to the production of his own part and to the direction of the conductor. The A Cappella Choir under the guidance of Mrs. Nelle C. Murphy, has distinguished itself in school assemblies, concerts at Christmas and in the Spring, and festivals with the choirs of other high schools. The choir has attained unusual success because of the perfectionistic industry of its director. As a result of the versatility of its repertoire the choir has been invited to sing for widely different kinds of organizations.

Musical Training Is A Potent Instrument . . .

TRIPLE TRIO

The Girls' Triple Trio are nine girls usually selected from the A Cappella Choir. Membership in this trio is the highest vocal honor that Walnut Hills can present to a girl. Besides singing for the radio, assemblies, Christmas program, Spring Concert, U.S.O., and many other outside groups, the Triple Trio usually forms the nucleus for the Revue Chorus. Dressed alike in white blouses and dark blue skirts, the trio presented a very pleasing appearance at their many performances.

BOYS' OCTETTE

One of the most outstanding features of the Christmas Assembly and Spring Concert is the performance of the Boys' Octette. This select group, all of whom are in A Cappella Choir, has performed before various outside groups and organizations including a radio broadcast with representative groups of other fine musicians in Cincinnati's high schools. Their spirited rendition of Old King Cole has become an annual tradition to all who are privileged to hear the beautiful harmony of the group.

MUSIC APPRECIATION CLUB

With a peaceful world ours, this year we have found more time to devote to Music and the Arts. The Music Appreciation Club has presented many interesting programs, including an all-Gershwin ensemble and a Bach-to-Boogie musical, using the talent found so abundantly here at school, and also presenting guest soloists. Well-known speakers have shared with us some of their musical knowledge and experience. Through these club meetings we found new inspiration.

THE GLEE CLUB

The Glee Club is the largest musical organization in the school because it is open to any upper school girl who likes to sing. It is important to the music department, for in it many members of the Triple Trio and A Cappella Choir receive their early training. The Glee Club is an integral part of both the Christmas and Spring Concert programs. Semi-classical songs are usually chosen for the club's contribution to the musical events of the year.

New Heights Through Hard Work

This year, under the able direction and vigorous teaching of Mr. Robert K. Hamilton, the orchestra for the first time combined with the band to play at our pep rallies before the football games. It furnished the musical background for the Shakespearean play, and all other dramatic productions, including Chinese music for Lady Precious Stream and between-the-acts entertainment for the annual spring play, Snafu. Strengthened by the band, this year's orchestra was one of the best heard in the history of the "Walnuts"—a fitting tribute to the many rehearsals put in by the members, and to the almost seventy new pieces that were learned. No less of an honor was the important part it played in the annual Spring Concert. In the latter event the orchestra played three pieces: "One Morning in May" by Carmichael, the "Pastorale" from the Classic Symphony of Gerschefski, and the "Roumanian Fantasy" by Velska. The band and orchestra then combined in Hill's Deep in Dixie.

Our band has been moulded into an organization capable of concert and marching work. The beginner enters the Junior Band, advancing to the Senior Band when certain standards have been met. The band played at the football and basketball games, executing close-order formations during the halves. The football fans at Walnut Hills were surprised and delighted when our newly-organized band first marched with precision onto the field to cheer our team to victory. The highlight of the band's career came when, for the first time, it marched proudly with the bands of the other three high schools at the annual football double-header at Nippert Stadium. The band also performed creditably at the Spring Concert, playing Lisey's "Gloria," Herbert's "The Red Mill," and Grieg's "The Last Spring."

To assure the band of more highly trained members, younger pupils formed a junior band that practiced the same numbers as its older counterpart. The complete rejuvenation of our band was due to the never-flagging and patient efforts of Mr. Hamilton.

Walnut Hills Still Maintains Its Shakespearean Tradition

Nels Culbertson plays Ariel to Irwin Weil's Prospero.

TO COMMEMORATE the twenty-fourth year of Shakespearean productions, the Walnut Hills High School players, last December, presented their interpretation of The Tempest. The action takes place on an island inhabited by Prospero, the Duke of Milan (Irwin Weil), and his daughter, Miranda (Betty Todd), who had been cast adrift there many years ago. On the island Prospero found Sycorax's son, Caliban (Bert Dorman), whom he made his slave; and also a spirit, Ariel (Nels Culbertson), who became his loyal and favorite subject.

Prospero learns that his old enemies, Alonzo (Norris Ganson), Antonio (Stanley Freedman), Sebastian (Irvin Schwartz), and his old counselor (Paul Schuck) are on a voyage, and he bids Ariel to wreck the ship on his island.

Alonzo's son, Ferdinand (Bradford Judd), finds his way to Prospero's cave, and immediately falls in love with his daughter. Prospero forgives his enemies their past evils; and, after setting Ariel free, he prepares to give up his magic powers and return to Naples once more to become the rightful Duke of Milan.

The expert direction of Miss Lotze, the appropriate backdrops constructed and painted by the art department under the advice and guidance of Mr. Dauterich, the performances by the actors, the efficiency of the stage crew combined to make a production comparable to other Shakespearean productions.

Top Right: Ferdinand is smitten with Miranda's charm.

Right Center: Caliban and Trinculo suspect each other of mystic powers.

WALNUTS OF 1946

ONE OF the biggest social events of the year at Walnut Hills is the annual presentation of the Walnuts. The cast of over a hundred students this year put on a Revue that was one of the best ever. Under the bright lights the pony chorus danced out to the tune of "It's Been a Long, Long Time" to open the show. Specialty performers, including tap dancers, toe dancers, pianists, and vocalists, combined with the dancing and singing choruses, the orchestra, and the continuity to make up a brilliant spectacle. Cast and stage crew alike spent many long hours preparing for the show, which went off without a hitch. The large group arrangements, in which the choruses and the specialists shared the limelight, helped to make the Walnuts of '46 a success.

The Misses Marian LeCour and Mary Lou Clarke were the professional directors of the pony chorus, and Mr. Merrill B. Van Pelt, director of the University of Cincinnati band, acted in an advisory capacity to help make this year's production one of the best.

Chinese Customs Are Dramatized

UNDER THE direction of Mr. Wayne Gregory, who recently returned to Walnut Hills from the Navy, the Junior Dramatic Club presented its annual production, Lady Precious Stream, a unique and charming Chinese comedy.

Against the wishes of her tyrannical father, the Prime Minister, his youngest daughter, Precious Stream, marries the gardener, Hsieh Ping Kuei. The difficulties ensuing Kuei's departure to the war in the western region, his marriage to the queen, and his subsequent return are solved happily for Precious Stream and her husband.

In spite of a severe snowstorm on the night when the production was scheduled, an appreciative audience arrived. Although long, the play was favorably received and enjoyed by those present. It was a change from the usual type of play at Walnut Hills; and this, perhaps, was one of the reasons for its enthusiastic reception.

The Peanuts Are Here To Stay

THE PEANUTS OF '46, following the tradition set by this year's graduating class, was presented on February 21 by the junior class before one of the largest crowds ever packed into our auditorium. This variety show, a parody of the Walnuts, was directed by Miss McDevitt and captained by Jack Rogers, class president, and Stuart Flerlage, master of ceremonies. The show featured the original songs of Myke Schiffer.

Besides the customary pony and "horse" chorus numbers, there were a mixed singing chorus number and many specialty acts, which were chosen from a large number submitted. The latter ranged from broad comedy to dancing and singing, with and without pantomime. The Peanuts of '46 showed a preparation and work which will set a high standard for future classes.

The show was handled entirely by the students, giving a wide field for the creative abilities and ingenuity of the junior class and showing promise of more independent student productions.

THE purpose of the Spanish Club is to offer its members the opportunity of making a practical use of their knowledge of the language. Varied programs are planned so that each member may find some phase of the club's activities that especially appeals to him. At the first meeting last fall, the Spanish Club had as a speaker a native of Panama, who gave a short talk in Spanish about the life and customs of that country. The Christmas program consisted of playing games in Spanish and singing Spanish songs, thus giving the members a feeling of familiarity with the language. At another meeting some of the members presented a play in Spanish, which was enjoyed as much by the actors as by the audience. A picnic brought to a close the activities of this year's Spanish Club, which was under the sponsorship of Mrs. Gonnard.

The German Club, an organization of long standing at Walnut Hills, was begun in the year 1930 by the first German students.

This year the club was under the faithful guidance of Miss Stratemeyer, founder of the club, and was open to any member of any German class at Walnut Hills, or to any other person interested in the German culture and language.

Learning the German Language during these troubled times, and being a member of such an organization as this have taught members of the club the importance and great need for tolerance and understanding in the post-war world.

LE CERCLE FRANCAIS meets once a month at Mrs. Ashbrook's lovely home. There, over cups of chocolate and Mrs. Ashbrook's delicious doughnuts, the members discuss in French everything from college plans to politics. This practice in speaking is valuable as well as entertaining, for during the year these students gain more knowledge of France and its people in addition to a better understanding of the language.

Before the war reduced so greatly the number of French students, only students of French III and IV were invited to join Le Cercle Francais. Now, besides the advanced students, those French II students who show promise may become members. The opportunity to speak the language which, because of the limited class time, cannot be given in the regular course, is a great advantage to those who have a more farsighted interest in the future use of the language.

THE IMPORTANCE of Latin to students was emphasized during Latin Week in March of this year. Dr. Malcolm McGregor, of the faculty of the University of Cincinnati, addressed the school in an assembly stressing the significance of Latin in every-day life. Miss Alice Wilson's senior Latin class were guests of the University of Cincinnati's Classics Department at a tea honoring Latin Week.

"Sursum ad Summum," being a Latin motto indicates the importance of Latin in our curriculum. The sentence structure and grammar of Latin prose give the seventh-grade students an important aid to the learning of English and other modern languages which they will study later. The advanced courses in Latin provide a vital background for the study of ancient history, for much of the Latin literature studied at Walnut Hills is a first-hand account of the customs and practices of ancient peoples. Because of our system of beginning Latin in the seventh grade, Walnut Hills students are privileged to enjoy an additional exposure to Latin; and in that way both modern languages and Latin can be studied over a greater period of years.

Pupils who later take advanced courses in English and speech have found that the artistic literary construction of the works of Cicero and Virgil has helped them immeasurably in their own problems in composition and rhetoric. Latin is also important for its application to poetry. Virgil's Aeneid has won acclaim for being one of the most beautiful poems in the Latin language. This poem not only portrays a great historical event, but also shows us the advances which our forefathers had made in poetry in ancient civilization.

Some consider Latin too difficult for seventh grade pupils who arrive at Walnut Hills, totally unacquainted with high school methods of learning. Many years of experience, however, bear evidence that this is not true. The efforts which young pupils have exerted in obtaining an elementary knowledge of Latin have been rewarded in many ways. Thus Latin is a logical part of our curriculum.

THERE IS no greater honor in our school than the attainment of membership in the Cum Laude Society. This national organization, which is comparable to the Phi Beta Kappa fraternity in college scholastics, offers the students a challenge which must be met by the perseverance and hard work of those who aspire to its glory. A Cum Laude key is awarded to every member of this organization as a symbol of the recognition he receives for outstanding scholastic achievement throughout the four years of his high school career. The excellent accomplishments of this group serve not only to inspire the younger pupils of the school, but also to substantiate the good reputation which Walnut Hills has in colleges and other institutions of learning throughout the country.

Student of Walnut Hills enjoy the special honor of being the only public high school students in Cincinnati to have a Cum Laude chapter from which Cum Laude honors can be received. In this respect as well as in many others, Walnut Hills is put on a par with many private college preparatory schools of the East, where Cum Laude chapters are more common and more widely known.

Miss Keiffer, who sponsors our chapter of the Cum Laude Society, deserves special credit for the diligence and efficiency which she has displayed in the execution of this important school function. Cum Laude elections are made twice a year; at the midyear and in June. Those pupils who have a four-year average of 92 per cent at the mid-term of their senior year are awarded their Cum Laude keys at that time, whereas those who have a four-year average of 90 per cent are admitted to the society in June.

Cum Laude has a special significance for those, who upon entering college, will make new acquaintances and meet other equally talented students from all over the United States. Because Cum Laude is a national organization, the symbol of its key is widely known and easily recognized by its fellow members who make one another's acquaintance over a common bond of scholastic attainment. In this way, the honor vested in membership in this society is extended from high school to college, where its significance may be even greater.

Thus the students who have attained the very singular honor of Cum Laude membership at Walnut Hills rise steadily and proudly to the attainment of their goals.

This year more than ever before, the Arts and Crafts Club has ventured into other crafts besides ceramics. Towards the beginning of the new year they presented an exhibit composed of leather-work, dyeing, and inlay at the Cincinnati Art Museum. Directed by the very capable Mrs. Carmichael, members of the club also entered their work in the Symphony Contest and in the Scholastic Exhibition. In the spring the Crafters gave their annual exhibition, at which time parents, teachers, and pupils were given the opportunity to see the results of the year's work and to see also how the art work was rated by many prominent Cincninati artists who judge this annual display.

An outstanding feature of this club's activities is the annual contest between members of the faculty and the students. Under the sponsorship of Mr. Caldwell, the club has enjoyed many profitable meetings.

ATHLETICS

"Ability Plus A Real Fighting Spirit Determine The Winner In Any Fight."--J. E. Fields

WALNUT HILLS, long famous as a college preparatory and classical high school, has at last shown the other large high schools of the city that athletics and intelligence do go together. This year Walnut Hills has had one of the most glorious years of athletics in the annals of its sports history.

But this golden year of sports could never have been possible unless every player on every team had given everything that he had to win for Walnut Hills. There is a tendency on the part of most people to give up when they are losing, rather than to try to put forth all their efforts toward winning although defeat is staring them in the face. Just what kind of basketball team do you think we would have had if every time it was losing it had quit playing? It was this spirit of striving for the highest goal that inspired its playing.

In our football game against Withrow we defeated that team on the gridiron for the first time in the memory of most of the students of this school. But, with every player on the field that day wearing the Blue and Gold, playing his heart out to win, with the inspired feeling of giving his utmost, how could we have done anything else but win?

We are all willing to bear our defeats along with the victories as long as we know that everyone of our players put forth his best; after that, there is nothing more that we can ask. Win or lose, when we know that the team has striven to do its best, we can be proud of every member of that team and praise him as a victor; for even in defeat he is a victor—a victor over himself.

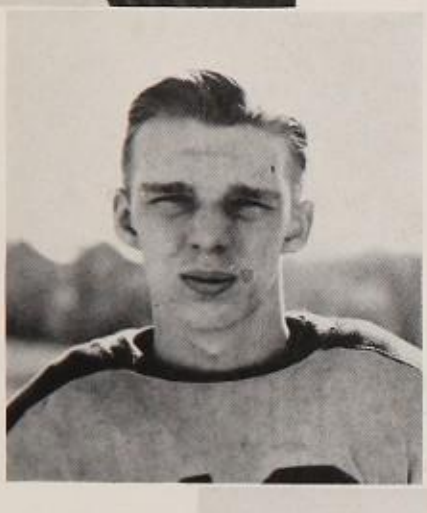
Not only do athletic activities teach the participants sportsmanship and how to get along with other people, but the spectator also shares in some of the lessons learned. The interested bystander also learns sportsmanship; and most learn to practice it at all times, no matter what their inclinations are toward one side or the other.

At the same time that the student spectators of Walnut Hills had athletic teams of which they could be proud, the athletic teams had spectators of whom they could be equally proud. This year there seemed to be more enthusiasm among the students than at any previous time. The Regional Tournament game at Dayton between Walnut Hills and Middletown was a tribute to the spirit of the rooters of our school. Over 400 eager fans braved the trip from Cincinnati, many in chartered buses, to see Walnut Hills play in their first up-state game. This was only one example of the newly-acquired enthusiasm that the students of Walnut Hills have developed during the past year. There is good indication that this enthusiasm will continue to prevail in the years to come.

Seventeen Eagles

The success of Coach Willard Bass lies in the systematic industry that he inspires in his boys.

This year the Walnut Hills Eagles had a successful gridiron season, highlighted by our 6-0 upset of Withrow. It was our first victory over that team and an answer to their trouncing of us for two years. The tireless coaching of Willard Bass, with the assistance of Mr. Davis and Mr. Farnham, in combination with a true team spirit of co-operation and sportsmanship gave Walnut Hills a team of which it is justly proud. Al-



Paul Siegel, right end

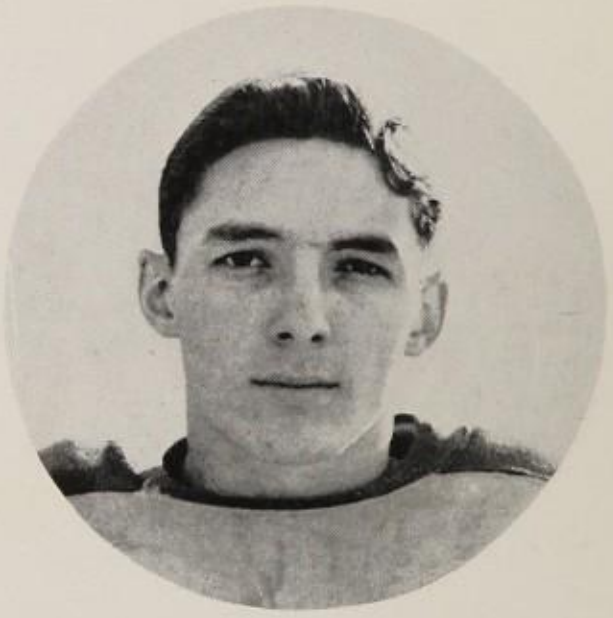
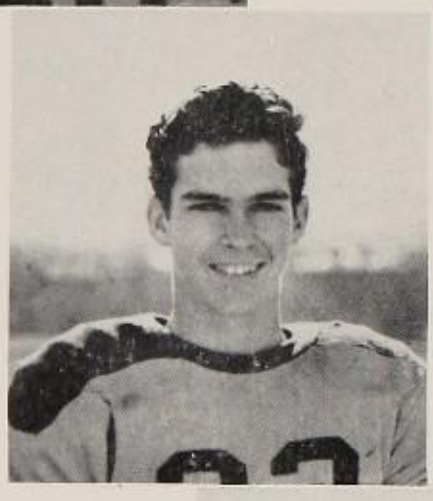
In his first year of varsity football, Paul displayed an amazing ability to snag passes out of nowhere.

Bill Ulmer, right tackle
6'—200—junior
In his first year at a starting berth on the varsity, Bill was a powerful bulwark on the right side of the line.



Marc Trabert, halfback (co-capt.)
5'9"—150—senior
Once again Marc had hard luck, and injuries kept him from seeing much action.



Dave Peck, right end
5'11"—155—senior
Dave's team spirit and enthusiastic play helped to keep the team fighting for every second of the game.

6'1"—206—senior
John, with three years of varsity ball behind him, was one of the big reasons why Walnut Hills had one of the best lines in the city.

Jim Whitney, halfback
5'9"—140—senior
Jim's speed and dependability made him a valuable asset to the team.

Clarence Heldman, right guard
5'7"—190—junior
The "Ape" proved himself to be one of the toughest players on the team. Small but stocky, he was a demon to the opposition because of his hard tackling.

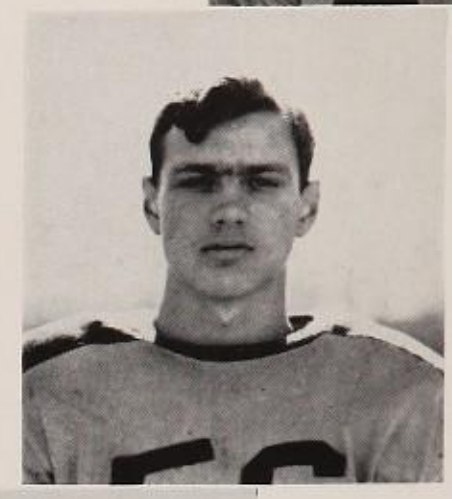
5'10"—200—junior
The opposition found it pretty hard to keep this big fellow from rushing through and blocking their punts.

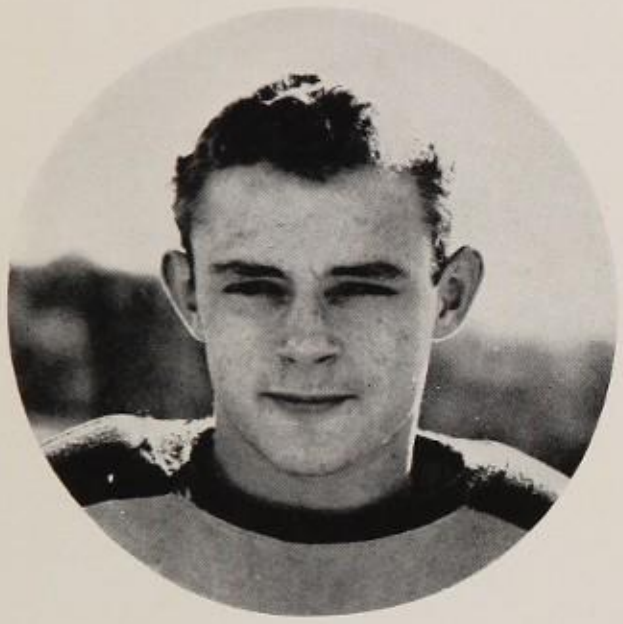
Win Their Letters

though our record of four wins and six defeats is not too impressive in itself, the games were against the toughest teams in the city, and many of them were highly contested battles. Throughout the season the Blue and Gold gridders showed a fighting spirit which gained them a high place in our regard. Next year's team, to be captained by Jerry Kanter, will have seven lettermen returning from this year's line.

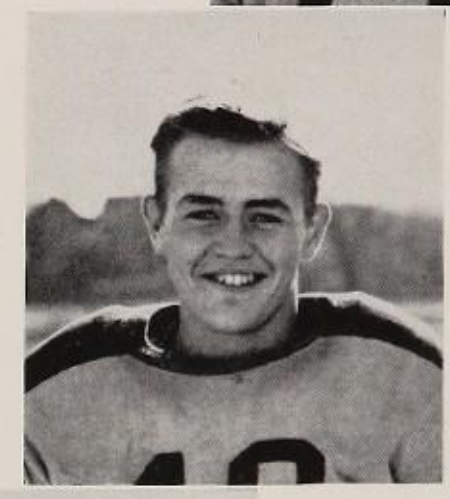
Alan Travis, guard
5'8"—155—sophomore
The lone sophomore on the team, he alternated between guard and center, playing both with equal ability.



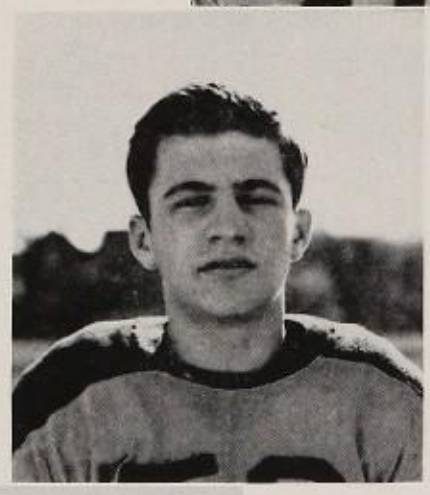
Gene Melzer, left end
6'2"—155—junior
His unusual ability to catch passes made Gene one of the high scorers in the city, with ten touchdowns to his credit.



Roger Sullivan, quarterback (co-capt.)
5'10"—170—senior
His running, passing, punting, and play-calling, made Sully's performance this past season one that Eagle rooters will long remember.



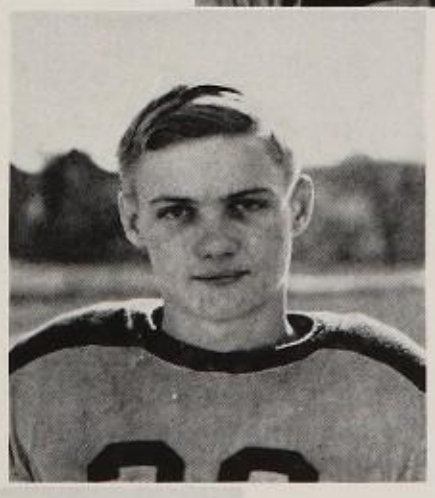
Dick Phipps, right halfback
5'11"—170—junior
An effective blocker and a hard runner, Dick was invaluable to the team.



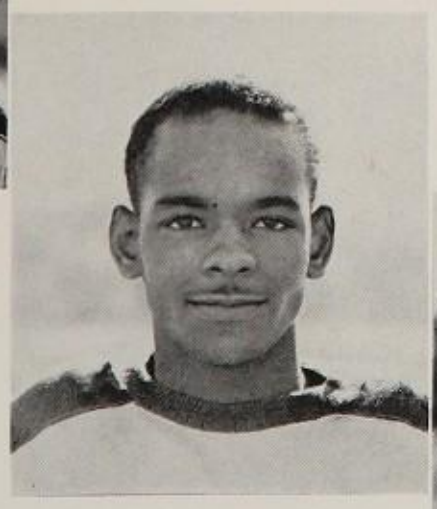
Jerry Kanter, center
5'11"—170—junior
An accurate center on the offense, a dependable backer-up, Jerry was usually the man on the bottom making the tackle.

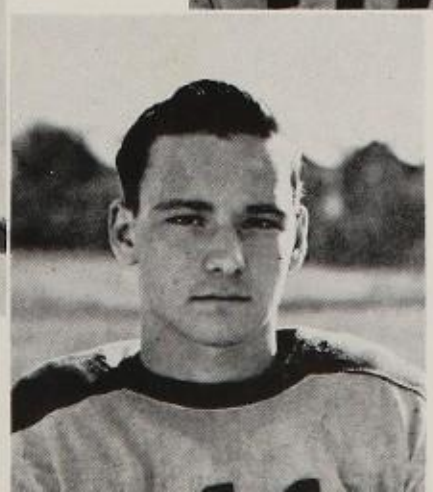
Walt Hickman, end
5'9"—160—senior
With Melzer playing the same end, Walt didn't get so much chance to play as he might have; but when he did see action, he was a tough nut to crack.

Bob Chenault, fullback
5'8"—140—senior
Once Bob got loose on end runs, he was hard to stop. The team could have used him next year if he weren't accelerating.



Roger Latta, fullback
5'9"—160—senior
Roger was a consistent gainer on reverses and central plunges. His watchful eye prevented many opposition passes from being completed.





Jack Schaefer, left halfback
5'9"—160—senior
A shifty runner and a good pass receiver, Jack was at his best in the Lockland and Central games.

WALNUT HILLS 0 — ST. XAVIER 18

Under the lights of St. Xavier Stadium, the Eagles opened their 1946 grid season, succumbing to a favored Bomber eleven. The Eagle offensive was unable to push beyond the "X" 40-yard line. In the second quarter the Blue and Gold forward wall, sparked by Kanter, showed well on the defense.

WALNUT HILLS 25 — WYOMING 7

Displaying a powerful offense and defense, Walnut Hills won its first victory of the season from its traditional foes, the Wyoming Cowboys. Scoring honors were divided between Siegel and Melzer, with each catching two of Sullivan's passes.

WALNUT HILLS 0 — LOCKLAND 12

For the first three quarters Walnut Hills battled Lockland to a scoreless tie, but in the fourth quarter the Panthers hung up two quick tallies on an intercepted pass and an Eagle fumble. Schaeffer plunged through the Lockland line for several first downs, but the Blue and Gold failed to score.

WALNUT HILLS 19 — NORWOOD 0

With the Eagle offensive in high gear, Walnut Hills crushed Norwood High in a decisive victory. The Indians were never in the game as Sullivan passed to Melzer for two touchdowns, and scored a third tally himself. On the offensive the forward wall opened huge holes in the Norwood line for the Blue and Gold backs, while on the defensive they forced the Indians to punt time after time.

WALNUT HILLS 6 — WOODWARD 19

The Walnut Hills eleven went down to defeat before the Woodward Bulldogs. The Eagle linemen stopped the Bulldog backs most of the game, but several long runs proved disastrous to the Blue and Gold. In the second period Sullivan passed to Melzer for the lone Walnut Hills touchdown.

WALNUT HILLS 2 — WESTERN HILLS 19

In the first quarter of the annual doubleheader the Maroons reeled off three quick touchdowns before the Eagles could rally. Walnut Hills played a superior game from the second quarter on, but the first period lead was too much to overcome. The Eagle forward wall was impregnable, with Eberle rising up to stop every thrust through his position.

WALNUT HILLS 7 — PURCELL 27

Walnut Hill's showing in this game against the best team in the city was exceptionally gratifying. The Cavaliers had no easy time with Sully throwing passes all over the gridiron and Melzer catching them. Once again the Eagles displayed their second half punch, but it was too late to be of any advantage.

WALNUT HILLS 19 — CENTRAL 0

The Hornets were no match for the Eagles once they started clicking. Sully tossed two touchdown aerials to Melzer to bring the number of touchdowns scored by the combination this year to eight. Central was held in its own territory for the major part of the game by a hard charging Eagle line.

WALNUT HILLS 6 — WITHROW 0

For the first time, a Walnut Hills football team defeated a Withrow eleven, avenging the terrible 50-0 setback at the hands of the Tigers two years ago. The Eagles forged into the lead in the first quarter on a touchdown pass from Sullivan to Melzer, and protected their margin for the remainder of the game. The Tigers were never able to penetrate beyond the Eagle 30-yard line while Walnut Hills threatened every quarter. THIS is one game that Walnut Hills fans will not forget for a long, long time.

WALNUT HILLS 0 — HUGHES 7

The Eagles were out to make it two upsets in a row, but the Big Reds barred the way. With the Eagles trailing by one touchdown in the last minutes of play, Kanter broke away on a trick play for sixty yards; but the game ended before the Blue and Gold could reach pay dirt.

THE 1945-46 basketball team's record surpassed that of any previous year in compiling 16 wins against one defeat. Great credit can be given to Mr. Bass and the team who worked hard to make this possible. The squad was alert, fast, and showed great team play. In the Public High Loop the Eagles took the title for the second time in school history as they rolled up ten victories without a defeat, and closed the season with twelve straight victories. Boasting one of the highest scoring outfits in the city, the Walnut Hills boys averaged 42 points per game and held the opponents to 29.

Coach Bass, started off the season with six varsity lettermen and, taking boys who had played reserve ball or who had not played last year, built up a championship club.

The high scoring Gene Melzer played at center. Gene scored 200 points for the year and led the P.H.S.L. in scoring. Forward Bill Hayes, who was moved to varsity from reserves in the fourth game, scored 152 and took second in scoring. Bill Schneebeck, co-captain, played his third year of varsity competition. Dave Peck, versatile guard and the other co-captain, and Roger Latta, steady guard, rounded out the first team. Jerry Kanter and Bill Frith played nearly as much as the first team men and were both great assets to the team. Those who also helped were Alan Brisker, Dick Burridge, Roger Sullivan, Paul Siegel, and John Seigle. The season started out with four straight victories before we were finally stopped by Xavier 27-28 for our only defeat of the season. The defeat of Hamilton Public was especially noteworthy as they lost to the state champs, Middletown, by only four points. The Eagles next ran over Withrow 47-24, preceding victories over Purcell, Western Hills, and Wyoming. Dave Peck led us to a 61-20 victory over Central as he dropped 18 points in the basket. Plainville gave us a scare, but Jerry Kanter came through with six points in the last quarter to beat them 48-47. The Blue and Gold practically clinched the title as they defeated second place Hughes 44-27 where Melzer and Dick Burridge stood out. Woodward, Withrow, Western, Central, and Norwood were taken into camp as we closed the season with our twelfth straight win. In the Central game, Bill Hayes showed the way with 21 points as we won 73-33. Latta scored 10 points to pull us through tough hurdles as we defeated Norwood 44-33.

The Eagles continued their winning ways as they entered the district tournament. Led by Gene Melzer they came from behind to defeat Woodward 42-28. Purcell was then defeated by 38-25. In the semi-finals, before a record crowd at U.C., our basketeers won over Elder 34-24. The final game of tournament pit the Eagles against Roger Bacon, GCY Champion. This game had been looked forward to all year, and a close game was anticipated. The Eagles easily defeated their opponents 41-26 to carry away the district laurels.

In the Dayton regionals Walnut Hills drew Middletown, who went on to win the state championship. As was expected, the Middies won 41-27 to end a glorious season for us.

Special honors go to Gene Melzer who was picked as a forward on the A.P. All-State Team.

The reserve squad also did very well in winning 11 out of 16. Boys who played a great deal were Ken Heekin, Tony Trabert, Bob Frith, Don Cecil, Dick Hyde, and John Stevenson.

Varsity lettermen Melzer, Hayes, Kanter, John Seigle, and Paul Siegel will return next year with the hopes of a second straight championship.

Eagle Tankmen Win Eighth

THIS YEAR the Walnut Hills swimming teams attained one of the highest and most noted positions that any Blue and Gold squad has ever gained. Under the very capable direction of their coach, George Alan Davis, the Eagle mermen established a proud record. The Eagles won the city crown without too much difficulty, placed runner-up in the Southwestern District meet, and at the state meet ranked a very high third. This made the second consecutive year that our school's tankmen have taken a third in the state.

At the start of the season, prospects did not look too hopeful, as two previous Eagle stars had left school a year early to enter college; then our coach found Dick Thoman, a fourteen-year-old prospect who turned out to be a record breaker. Not only did Dick push the junior team through to victory but helped the senior team to gain its high places in the district and state meets. The leading point maker for the seniors was Bob Congelliere who set a record of his own by making 54 points for the Blue and Gold. Bob was very consistent throughout all his meets, taking first three times in each city event. Then came Bob's big chance at the state meet, and he really proved his worth by being the only double winner of the whole meet. Several records were also set by Thoman and Congelliere, with Thoman making a new junior record in every event except the breast stroke, and Bob setting a new 50-yard mark.

Tom Guggenheim and Jack Schaefer also were leading point makers, as Guggy and Jack held down second places in the city meets in the 200 yard free style, the 100 yard free style, and the 50 yard free style. Filling out the winning relay teams were Dave Workum, Joe Graves, and Bill Doerman, who were all very fast in the fifty-yard distance. The diving for the seniors was handled by Reb Barber. senior point winner as he finished third in the breast stroke.

On the junior team, Doug Cherry, Paul Tobias, Howard Gershin, and Tom Pinel added several points to the Eagle cause by producing a winning relay team to assure the juniors an easy victory. Other junior letter winners were Dick Schwab, Amiel Wohl, and Rich Haller. Another winning relay team which set the new city record for the 150 yard relay was comprised of Thoman, Haller, and Schwartz.

Coach "Whitey" Davis is expecting to have another championship team next year even though several of the senior swimmers are graduating from the team. Barber, Doerman, and Lowenthal will be the only senior mermen returning; but Mr. Davis is expecting to move several juniors to the higher team. The chances for the state title will also be bright, as many of the boys have swimming meets over the summer to keep them in shape.

Much credit for the success of this year's mermen must be given to our coach Mr. Davis. He came to the hilltop school two years ago, and in that time has turned out two championship teams. If it were not for the accelerated scholastic program during the war, the Eagles would have had the best team in the state; nevertheless "Whitey" proved his knowledge of aquatic sports, turning out a championship squad.

AS THE REMEMBRANCER goes to press, the 1946 edition of the Walnut Hills baseball team has played seven games, winning two, both of which were against Public High Shool teams, and losing five. After losing the first two games to St. Xavier and Purcell by the respective scores of 7-0 and 6-5, Coach Ray Farnham juggled his line-up, making experiments with different combinations of players, which proved successful against Hughes as the Eagles won the game, 6-1. The Eagles lost the next game to Norwood by the score of 7-4, but rallied the very next day to defeat the State Champions, Woodward, by the score of 8-1. The Woodward boys were held to one hit by Dave Peck. The Eagles dropped the next two games to Withrow and Western Hills, 5-1 and 14-3 respectively. Through the first seven games the team batting average was .280. In the field the Eagles lacked experience as they committed 29 errors in 247 chances for an average of .882. In spite of the erratic performances the team has shown thus far, there have been instances of spectacular playing which seem to foreshadow a more auspicious end than a beginning.

Alan takes a high one.

Track Team Strives For Additional Glory

THIS YEAR, more than any other, the senior track team showed the prospect of a winning team. For the first time in recent track history, Walnut Hills defeated the Hughes force. And what proved to be a most important factor: the Blue and Gold team was better balanced than ever. Running a superb mile, Bates recorded 4:45. In the half-mile competition, Parson paced the 2640 feet in 2:10. White ran the 440 in 0:55. Two of the finest relay teams ever formed represented the school. The 880 was composed of Rosenberg, L. Schwab, Sullivan, and Thexton. White, Bates, Parson, and Ziegenhals constituted the mile relay. In field events the team's versatility was likewise proved. Kanter hurled the shot-put 43 feet; and Sullivan threw the discus a distance of 115 feet. Hyde and Hazlett jumped the pole at 5'6". Most promising is the Junior team which boasts an array of athletes that are sure to raise Walnut Hills' athletic standard.

The team takes its mark.

THE EAGLES' Tennis Team have had another successful season with the return of many boys who performed on last year's squad. Coach Beaver had back two of the best players in this section of the country, Tony Trabert and Bill Schneebeck. Trabert, Schneebeck, and a third team member, Ted Price, figured largely in the playing of the state tournament. Next year another excellent season can be expected, since there will be many lettermen coming back. In the district tournament our netmen did a fine job, for the whole team reached the semi-finals and a sizable portion, the finals.

THIS YEAR the golfers, like all Eagle teams, represented us quite well. The team was composed mostly of returning lettermen, and Coach Caldwell's boys enjoyed a very profitable season. This year's team showed vast improvement over the squads of former years. The team score was brought down considerably with the average about 85. Coach Caldwell said that the boys showed good sportsmanship at all times and played their best for the school. Many boys will return to spark next year's team. In the Southwestern District high school golf tournament the Eagle golfers finished tenth among fifteen teams competing with a 345 total, an average of 86 per man.

Minor Teams Win For W. H. H. S.

TWO TEAMS which are not much publicized at Walnut Hills are the gym and volley ball teams, coached by Mr. Carl Varrelmann. The volley ball team consists mostly of the boys who play basketball also. They taken part in a city-wide tournament, with two teams from each school entering. This year the Eagle first team moved to the finals before being defeated by Woodward. The second squad also played ably as it was not until the finals that they were defeated by Hughes.

The gym team works as hard and practices as much as any other team in school. It takes perfect co-ordination of the mind and body to be able to do the difficult exercises which they perform. About eight years ago, Walnut Hills gym teams were constantly a threat in the state meet. City meets were always taken by the Eagles. Then the War came; and, because of the necessity for Coach Varrelmann to take over the basketball team, the gym squad was dropped from our activities. Last year, with the arrival of new coaches, gym team activities were resumed. Mr. V. had to start from scratch, but this year the Eagle senior team finished in second place in the P.H.S.L. while the juniors ended the Hughes dynasty by winning all three city meets.

In G. A. A. Girls Match Enthusiasm Of Boys

THE GIRLS' ATHLETIC ASSOCIATION is an outlet for the girls of the school especially interested in gym activities. Miss Sellers, the head of the girls' gym department, is the sponsor of this organization. She, in cooperation with the G.A.A. board, directs the extra-curricular work in hockey, volleyball, basketball, baseball, swimming, archery, tennis, badminton, pingpong, hiking, and soccer.

The G.A.A. gives its awards for achievement on the basis of a point system. Girls are thus able to earn class numerals, school emblems, bracelets, chevrons, and, in the case of the most outstanding senior girl, the G.A.A. honor ring.

Our G.A.A. also participates in the inter-high school Play Days. This year the G.A.A. had the proud distinction of winning the hockey Play Day, to which it was hostess.

DURING THE past year the Dance Club of Walnut Hills High School has striven to help its members gain more poise and a better knowledge of modern dance technique. The club is composed of about fifty girls from the four upper grades of the school under the guidance of Miss Frances Hanauer. At the G.A.A. Mother and Daughter Tea in the spring of the year, the Dance Club gave its annual program. The theme this year was "State Fair." Many modern songs were used, for which original dances were planned. The dances, along with the tunes, suggested certain types of people coming to the Fair. The character of the city people, the country folk, and the judges of the Fair was depicted. The large audience was very enthusiastic, and the girls who participated in the program joined the spectators afterwards for refreshments in the lunchroom.

Competition Is Keen For Hockey And Soccer Victories

IN THE FALL of each year the members of G.A.A. come out for hockey and soccer. Hockey is limited to the upper school, and soccer is for the seventh and eighth grade girls. This year Walnut Hills played host to the hockey players of all the other Cininnati high schools for the annual hockey Play Day. Walnut Hills easily came out in front. With the spectacular drive by Betty Kumler into the goal and the excellent defense by Alberta Pfaff and Rita Zwick, we had no trouble in downing the opponents. We gained another victory when we played the annual alumni game. Again Betty with the help of Jean Pierle kept the balls rolling into the goal. We not only had to battle with the alums but with our own gym teachers. Was it a thrill to win over our own teachers.! We hope that they will practice a little and redeem themselves next year. The senior class won the school championship in hockey, and the eighth grade girls defeated the seventh grade team to take the honor soccer title. Soccer, which is played on the hockey field and the rules of which are rather similar to those of hockey, provides for the lower school girls an opportunity to learn something of the game they are to play in the upper school.

Archery And Volley Ball Are Part Of The Gym Program

WITH EILEEN SEIDLER as their leader, the girls who are interested in archery set up the target whenever there is nice weather. After many afternoons of practice, a contest is held, the winner of which is announced at the Spring Banquet.

Volleyball has always been one of the chief sports for girls at Walnut Hills. It is a winter sport played indoors on the courts of the girls' gym. It is especially well liked when indoor sports are in vogue, because it affords the opportunity of continuing active sports when it is snowing outside.

Sports Develop Health And Grace

ONE OF the most popular games is baseball, which is the first outside sport in the spring. While the girls are learning the mechanics of the game in their gym classes, they are enjoying the thrill of playing it after school.

The seniors copped the basketball title this year after many hard-fought matches. Although girls' basketball is different from that of the boys, it is nevertheless exciting and arduous. Urged on by shouts from the sidelines, the G.A.A. members try hard to make baskets and win the title.

Girls Compete In Friendly Rivalry

EACH SPRING tennis, ping-pong, and badminton are three of the most popular upper school girls' sports. In each sport there is an elimination tournament, the victors being recognized at the Spring Honor Banquet. These tournaments offer opportunities to improve enthusiasts' technique, including timing, muscular control, and accuracy of form. With the approach of warm weather, the upper school girls practice their tennis strokes during their gym periods on the school courts. Those who like a vigorous indoor sport play badminton in the girls' spacious gym. For girls who prefer a less strenuous sport, there is ever-popular ping-pong. In all three sports much is gained by the participants: each girl enjoys acquiring the skills of the games besides learning good sportsmanship and making new friends.

Girls Learn Life Saving In Their Classes

THIS YEAR the courses in life saving, which were started several years ago, were continued here at Walnut Hills in the junior and senior classes. In their regular class period those girls who were interested in the course were given instruction in rescues, carries, and artificial respiration and were given opportunity to pass the tests qualifying them as members of the Red Cross Life Saving Corps. Many of the juniors and seniors took advantage of this opportunity to receive instructions from Miss Sellers and Miss Hanauer.

Besides the courses in life saving many activities marked the calendar of the year in the way of girls' swimming. Walnut Hills played host to the other public schools in the city on Play Day, of which the swimming was a major event. The several classes engaged in interclass meets, the final victor being the juniors.

CALENDAR

The Story Of The Year In Snapshots

IT WAS the second week in September, and still much too hot to go to school; but it was 8:15 and the crowd was gathering. It was good to see everybody again. We hadn't seen some of them all summer. Blair Avenue still had its "no turn" signs—school looked just the same. There was that old rattletrap in the parking lot again; it's almost a fixture. The steps were crowded; nobody wanted to go in. We were all standing around catching up on the gossip. The eight-twenty-five bell rang, and the day began. That first day wasn't bad—only a half day spent getting readjusted to school life. The effies and new students were rather bewildered, though; and half a day was quite enough. The next day was worse; the work began to pile up already. By the end of the week we were students again, and the effies were being initiated into the mysteries of the school by their Big Sisters and Big Brothers. September crept by, with an assembly now and then to break the routine. Club activities were getting under way, and seniors were beginning to worry about college. With October came glorious weather and the first football game. Everyone turned out to see that. The newly-picked cheerleaders were there in their yellow sweaters, and school spirit ran high. The leaves began to turn brown, and along about the end of October came the Canteen dance. Before we knew it we were watching the Eagles defeat Withrow, and the next week we said a sad farewell to football season. Remember the lines the upperclassmen made to form a path for the team? And remember the way the band played Semper Fidelis? We settled back to studies, and soon the Shakespearean play rolled around. We were proud of our 24th annual production, and we had a gay time afterwards at the cast party. It was basketball season already, and the team looked good. Christmas with the Christmas concert and the holidays broke in, with lots of fun for everyone. We trudged back to school through the snow, and began to think about exams. We pulled through all right, and celebrated the beginning of the second semester. The basketball team was attracting attention, and rehearsals for the Junior Dramatic production, the Peanuts and the Revue were getting under way. The swimming teams were breaking records. The amateur show found some real talent in the lower school; Lady Precious Stream proved the worth of our returned veteran director. The swimmers went upstate, and were soon followed by our championship basketball team. How proud we were of them! Along came the Revue, and more fun for all. April Fools' Day saw the traditional Chatterbox. The seniors worried through college boards while it turned to spring, and we began to wonder where we could go swimming. It was baseball season now, and lower classmen were going out for Intramurals. With spring came Snafu, and the graduation list posted in the main hall. Baby Day brought all the seniors out dressed in jumpers and sailor suits, skipping rope in the circle. Then came the Prom, the big event for the upperclassmen. It wasn't any time at all till it was Class Day, and we were laughing at the Will and Prophecy. The middle of June brought graduation, and amidst the sad strains of Pomp and Circumstances the seniors walked down the aisle for the last time.

50 YEARS AGO

J. REMSON BISHOP

WILLIAM HENRY VENABLE

GEORGE E. DAVIS

HALF A CENTURY ago Walnut Hills High School began. Since then, the school has had only five principals. Under the able guidance of J. Remson Bishop, our first principal, Walnut Hills became the first public preparatory school west of the Alleghenies. Staffed with a mere 21 instructors, in comparison with the 65 of the present day, and an enrollment of 250 pupils, Walnut Hills progressed at a rapid rate. Mr. Bishop did not believe in mere textbook teaching, and it was due to his influence that equipment in the way of dictionaries, encyclopedias, microscopes, slides, maps, and charts were obtained for the new school.

Under the second principal, Mr. William Taylor Harris, Walnut Hills gained recognition academically, especially from the College Board.

He was succeeded by Mr. Atley S. Henshaw, who had formerly been a teacher of mathematics at Walnut Hills.

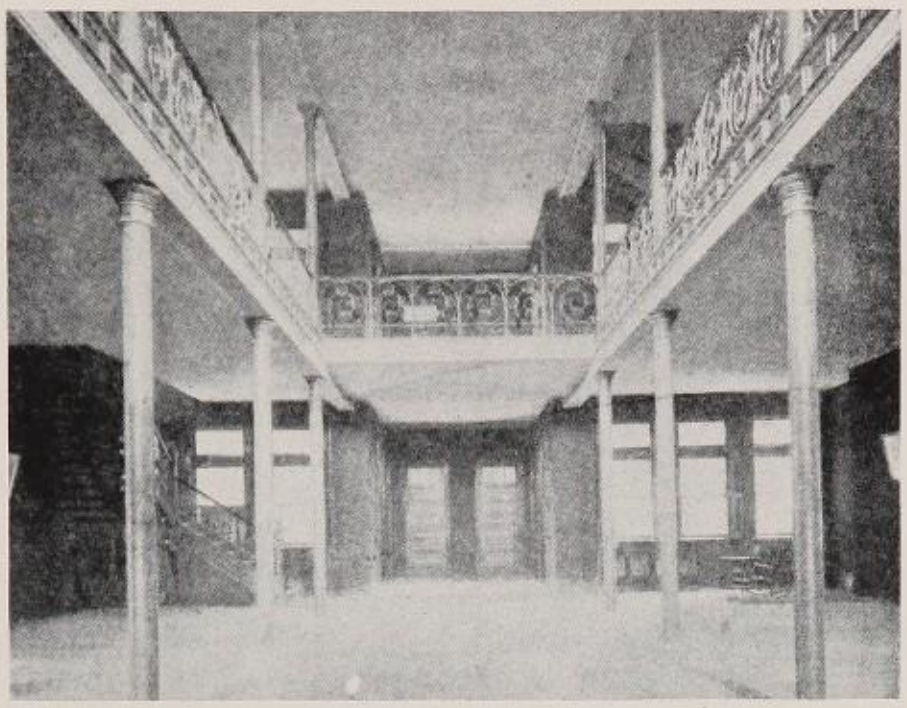
Then, in 1919, Mr. George E. Davis arrived from Boston to become the first principal in the new building twelve years later. He initiated the plan of a six-year high school as distinguished from separate junior and senior high schools. His model was that of the English schools in general, and of the Boston Latin School in particular.

Although Mr. William Henry Venable was not among our quintet of principals, nevertheless he played a very important role in the origin of the literary publications of Walnut Hills High School. It was he who named and established "The Gleam," the first literary publication of the school. It was distributed several times a year and contained the class prophecy and history, witticisms heard around the building, the volumes recently contributed to the new library, and the literary accomplishments of the student body. Later this publication became known as the Gleam-Remembrancer, and displayed pictures besides its journalistic contents. From this developed our year book, the Remembrancer, and a newspaper similar to our present day Chatterbox. "The Cincinnati Daily Klax." Today we possess all three types of publications.

WALNUT HILLS HIGH SCHOOL, as it was founded on October 11, 1895, was originally located at Ashland and Burdette Avenues. Because of the addition of the seventh and eighth grades, several new rooms had to be constructed. In 1931 Walnut Hills moved to its new home and present location.

In the old building, the science laboratories were perhaps the best equipped departments in the school. Even today, we may well be proud of our renowned laboratories, with their extensive facilities.

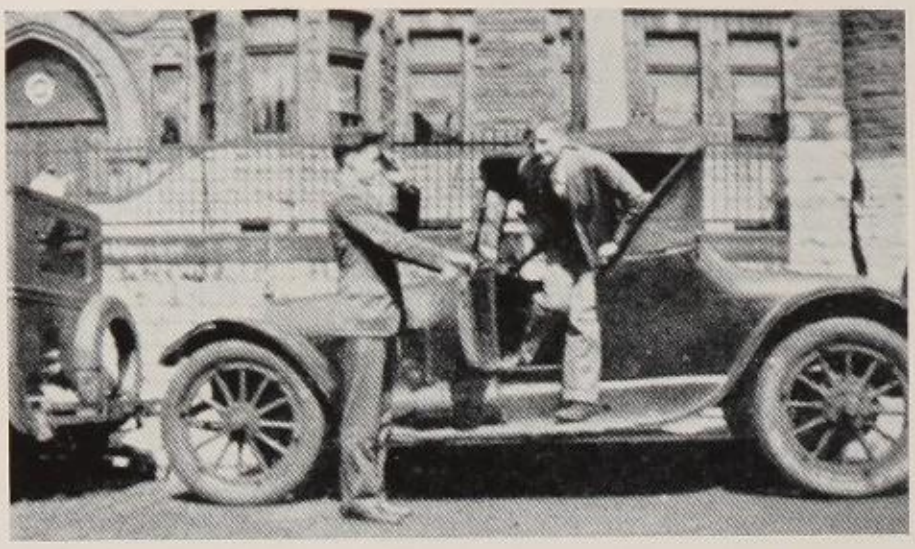
Walnut Hills is the only public high school in the city with its own public address system. It was presented in 1934 by Mrs. H. K. Ach in memory of her husband.



References to classes were also different half a century ago. The senior class was called the "A" class, the junior, the "B," the sophomore, the "C," and so on, thus revealing the origin of the nicknames "Effies" and "E-Flats" for the seventh and eighth grades, respectively. Each class was divided into only two sections, girls and boys. Today we have seven or eight. Formerly, each separate grade possessed its own class flower, color, motto, and song. The first graduates chose the daisy, the colors yellow and white, and the motto "Sumus Primi," a Latin phrase in keeping with the standards of a classical high school.

We hope that we are justified in feeling that we have maintained the high ideals of this motto.

ACTIVITIES



AMID RUMORS of a world war, the first Walnut Hills High School prom was held at the Masonic Temple. The juniors played host to the senior class. They decorated the hall with crepe paper and distributed pencils as favors.

Automobiles driven to school were a curiosity and were exhibited with pride.

The Student Court was founded by Mr. George E. Davis, who made the court a stable organization to cooperate with the Student Council in demanding order. Under the same direction the present Student Council was organized by a group of upperclassmen in order to bring the management of the school more directly into the hands of the pupils. From these two worthy organizations, Walnut Hills pupils have gained experience in the line of democratic government, and a keener sense of responsibility.

From the very beginning athletics was one of the most popular extracurricular activities at Walnut Hills High School. Under Mr. Bishop an extensive physical education program was begun, which has been steadily expanded as the years have advanced.

BABY DAY, half a century ago, was slightly different from our celebration of today. The seniors patterned themselves after the seventh, the eighth, and the ninth graders, rather than after real babies. But the students of Walnut Hills seemed to enjoy the occasion just as much fifty years ago as we do today.

A Glee Club was one of the first extra-curricular activities to be formed at Walnut Hills High School. Its rapid increase from the original ten members has proved its popularity.

A dramatics group was also one of the first organizations at Walnut Hills; however, the famous Shakespearean plays did not start until after the school moved to its new location. In 1920, Miss Lotze's first production, Dickens' Christmas Carol, was presented.

One of the most prominent programs of the school fifty years ago was the Walnut Hills High school Cadet Corps, with Mr. J. Remson Bishop, the first principal, at its head as major. These cadets were supplied with uniforms and guns, and attended regular drill practices. This activity corresponds to our pre-induction drill classes, which are under the direction of the American Legion, and which tend to develop co-ordination and a greater knowledge of military conduct and drill procedures in the participants.

School publications originated right along with Walnut Hills High School in 1895. "The Gleam" was the first in this field. Later followed the "Chatterbox," and finally the "Remembrancer." Journalism is still an important and popular activity.

ATHLETICS

Walnut Hills High School has always advocated extensive athletic programs as a foundation for physical fitness. Although there were no swimming pools in the old building, and the physical education department consisted merely of the regular gymnasium work, our outside football, baseball, and gym teams were a credit to us. In 1898, the Walnut Hills High School baseball team was undefeated. Many times since then, championship trophies, won by our various teams, have been added to the show case in the main hall.

Many practices have recently been added to our outside athletic program for the betterment and safety of those involved. Due to the foresight of our present principal, Mr. Leonard P. Stewart, Walnut Hills High School athletes now go out on the field insured against injuries. He has instituted a system whereby a fund, put up by both the players and the Parent-Teacher Association, is available to help defray costs incurred by injuries.

In previous years each class chose its own colors, and there were no definite school hues. The first colors chosen were yellow and white. The graduates of 1897 chose green and white. Later, the colors reverted to the choice of the first graduating class, and remained thus until 1919. When Walnut Hills was reorganized from a district school into a six-year classical course, the colors were changed to royal blue and gold for greater brilliance, these have remained our school hues for the past twenty-seven years.

Musical organizations have always been popular with the students of Walnut Hills High School. The Mandolin Club, the orchestra, and the band were among the first to be started. We are especially proud of the progress made by our band under the able direction of Mr. Hamilton.

Ten Sons and a Barber Shop

Your class prophet may say that in 25 years you'll have ten sons and a barber shop. He's dreaming! But we can tell you . . . a fact . . . in 25 years you can own the nucleus of a fine estate. A Northwestern Mutual Endowment Policy can make this dream come true.

BETTER SERVICE FOR ALL

Good telephone service requires more than instruments, wires and central office equipment—more even than operators, linemen, engineers and installers . . . it also requires the thoughtful cooperation of the men, women and young people who use it. Short conversations, courteous sharing of party lines, being sure of your number before calling, and similar practices are essential to good telephone service.

We in the telephone industry are constantly striving to provide a high quality system to serve the needs of our community, but the degree of satisfaction the service affords depends much on how it is used.

"We must disenthrall ourselves!"

THEODORE ROOSEVELT once wrote, "When I was just out of college and very ignorant . . ." We are all like that now. The Atomic Age has catapulted us into a gulf of confusion and despair. We observe that only 300 years of known history have been free of war. We have been that idiotic. If we consider our potential capabilities we are indeed the most stupid and destructive of creatures.

Our generation has suffered the two most devastating of all wars. The others were comparatively child's play. As a means of justice they were horrible, brutal, and largely futile business, because we did not have the sense and the morality to establish a more practical state of human well-being and a world force capable of preventing criminal aggression. Some of us learned a little after the First World War but not enough to make The League of Nations prevent the Second. War is no longer even a bad solution. We are tragically late again. The menace of human extinction is terribly real.

We must come to our better senses—purge ourselves of vicious prejudices and cannibalistic greeds, or explode ourselves off this planet. A revitalized morality, a more workable economic system, a nobler reign of Law is imperative. Its heart must be The Golden Rule, its objective, The Brotherhood of All Men.

In the midst of the social tempest known as "The Civil War" Abraham Lincoln charted the way through: "The dogmas of the quiet past are inadequate to the stormy present. The occasion is piled high with difficulty, and we must rise with the occasion. As our case is new, so we must think anew and act anew. We must disenthrall ourselves!"

Yes, "Disenthrall Ourselves" from the science-crushed Maginot line the Mason and Dixon line and the so-called "Free Enterprise" line of our paltry politics, our illiterate economics, our inhumanity of man to man, and our selfish morality. A perverted science can be the Fifth Horseman of The Apocalypse. If we allow him to stampede we shall perish by millions in an inferno irresponsibly stolen from the sun. At the moment, humanity is obselete. Still we can attain proper control. Long ago we could have made our world infinitely saner and happier. Now it must be "One World or No World." We can master these tornadoes of Atomic energy, so akin to the unfathomable forces of the universe, for the work and the peace and the blessing of all mankind. Or we can let them destroy us. Shall we wisely and gladly relinquish our outmoded nationalistic conceits and meet the challenge of the stupendous new age with—THE WORLD GOVERNMENT OF ALL PEOPLES?

Acknowledgments

The staff of the Remembrancer of 1946 wishes to express its sincerest gratitude to those whose guidance and advice have made this book possible:

to Mr. William A. Ruff of the Cincinnati Process Engraving Company, whose interested assistance has been more than generous; to the Messrs. Shellhouse of the Oxford Printing Company for rising to an emergency and doing a meticulous piece of work;

to our photographers, Mr. Paul Briol; Mr. Ralph E. Schroer of the Marsh Studios; Mr. Ray Metzger of Metzger & Metzger; and Mr. Norman Bush of Shillito's Photo-Reflex Studio; to Mr. K. G. Cooley of the D. J. Molloy Plant, the S. K. Smith Company, Chicago; and to Mr. George W. Rosenthal of S. Rosenthal & Company, Cincinnati, for the production of the book covers;

to the Walnut Hills High School Association for financing the Golden Jubilee section of the book; to Miss Elda M. Baechle, who, from her experience as former adviser of the Remembrancer, gave helpful hints; to Mr. Wayne Gregory for his assistance in reading and correcting copy; to Mr. Edward Dauterich, our art adviser, whose fine critical judgment contributed very largely to the attractive design of this book; and especially to Mrs. Charlotte Gonnard, our general adviser, whose unfailing effort and sympathetic co-operation were a guide to the entire staff.
